Backers Of Election Change Gain Support In Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen wanting to change the way America chooses its presidents are expected to win early endorsement of the principle of direct election.

A solid bipartisan majority of the 35-member House Judiciary Committee favors junking the Electoral College and moved to put the committee on record today. But hammering out the language of a constitutional amendment to accomplish such a far-reaching change may prove a difficult task.

However, Chairman Emanuel

Celler's goal of quick endorsement of direct election would eliminate a raft of alternative proposals from committee consideration.

One of the options, backed by President Nixon, would divide a state's electoral votes among the presidential candidates in proportion to their popular vote.

In a message to Congress, Nixon said he personally favored a popular election amendment but was convinced it was too controversial to win ratification by the necessary 38 states. Nixon has told Republican leaders in the House that if both the House and Senate approve a direct election amendment he will help in the fight to rally public support for ratification by the states. But until that stage is reached, he is reported to have said he will stay out of the struggle.

Despite the President's position, 10 of the 15 Republicans on the committee are reported to be firmly in favor of direct elections. At least 16 of the 20 Democrats are similarly inclined.

The situation is more fluid when it comes to details of an amendment, which would have to specify provisions for run-off elections, the percentage of the popular vote that would be required to win, and voter qualifications. The committee is expected to wrestle with such matters for some time.

Committee approval of the amendment would be only the first of a series of increasingly formidable barriers that would have to be cleared before the nation finally changed the way it chooses its presidents.

A two-thirds majority is required in both the House and Senate, and backers of direct election in the Senate consider the outlook dim there at the moment. Once congressional approval is obtained, ratification by three-fourths of the states would be needed.

Expect Nixon's ABM Plan To Win Approval In House

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's Safeguard missile defense system, which is in considerable difficulty in the Senate, faces much easier going in the House where opponents concede they don't have the strength to stop the program.

An informal count by one congressman found only about 100 representatives publicly opposed or leaning against deployment of the antiballistic missile — ABM — system.

"You know that we ABM opponents will lose in the House," Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal said. "If Safeguard is to be stopped, the Senate will have to do it," according to the New York Democrat.

"My guess is that we will wind up with about 75 to 100 votes against it," said Rosenthal, an organizer of the anti-ABM Congressional Conference on the Military Budget and National Priorities.

The prospect of an almost certain House victory has the administration pushing for the first congressional test of the Safeguard to come in that chamber, sources say.

But even though a House victory would give Nixon a psychological boost, it would not necessarily guarantee similar approval in the Senate where Safeguard critics say they have the strength to either keep the program from coming to a vote or to kill it if it reaches the floor.

Opponents of the $8 billion Safeguard say it could escalate the nuclear arms race, threaten progress in disarmament talks, siphon money from domestic programs, and prove to be obsolete or ineffective.

Besides lacking numbers, the House opposition, mostly liberal Democrats, also admits being disorganized. They also lack backing from the Democratic leadership, notably Speaker John W. McCormack and Majority Leader Carl Albert.

The situation is the opposite in the Senate where the critics are united and include Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and his assistant, Edward M. Kennedy.

Twisters Rip Oklahoma; Hail Smashes Areas

Colliding Fronts Bring Storms To 5 States

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tornadoes punished numerous towns and countryside areas of Oklahoma Wednesday night as part of a violent weather pattern extending northeastward into Illinois.

The twisters leveled homes, uprooted trees and tossed cars about in many parts of Oklahoma, particularly in the southern section of the state.

No fatalities were reported, but several persons were injured.

Funnel clouds also were sighted in Missouri and Kansas.

Thunderstorms, hail and high winds were common along a line of clashing warm and cold air from North Central Texas to Northeastern Illinois.

A tornado in Comanche, Okla., threw an 89-year-old man 50 yards through the air and wrecked his home. Police reported the town covered with hail the size of baseballs.

Power and telephone lines were toppled in a wide area of Southern Oklahoma.

Hail as large as golf balls stalled traffic in northwest sections of Fort Worth, Tex., where winds were clocked at 58 miles per hour.

At Emporia, Kan., winds gusted up to 94 m.p.h.

Locally heavy rains drenched areas of Southeastern Colorado and North Central Texas to Kansas. An inch or more fell at Enid, Okla., Mineral Wells, Tex., Lamar, Colo., and Emporia and Chanute, Kan.

There also were scattered showers along the Atlantic Coast, the Pacific Northwest, the Central Gulf Coast and in the Upper Great Lakes Region. Badly flooded points in the Upper Midwest were spared any appreciable rain.

Temperatures in the early morning ranged from 27 at Laramie, Wyo., to 78 at Key West, Fla.

Sirhan Jury Eyes Doctrine Of Diminished Responsibility

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tense, weary and unsmiling, defendant and jury eyed each other in the Sirhan Bishara Sirhan trial as the jurors asked a pointed question: What is second degree murder in the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy?

It indicated, as the jurors went into their fourth day of deliberation today, that they are taking soundings about the doctrine of diminished responsibility on which the defense pins its hopes for a second degree verdict.

The legal instructions for all the verdicts possible in the case — first degree murder, second degree, manslaughter and acquittal — were read to the jury Monday and there is a copy in the jury room. But it's a complicated subject.

Jury foreman Bruce D. Elliott sent a note to Judge Herbert V. Walker Wednesday asking for a rereading of the instruction that defines second degree murder.

LUTHER Bower was mistakenly listed as a member of Circleville's Planning and Zoning Commission in The Herald Wednesday.

Bower spoke during council's Tuesday meeting concerning the rezoning of the Smith and Wolfe properties on South Court St. as an "interested person" not in any official capacity.

Members of the planning and zoning commission are W. P. Yamarick, William Cook, Harold Anderson, Larry Varble, Wayne Griffith, Mayor Richard Gerhardt and Earl Radcliff.

The buzzer sounded in the courtroom and 36 minutes later, Sirhan and his lawyers, the prosecutors, all the various court personnel and the judge were assembled. It was the first time they were together since the jury began its deliberations Monday.

Judge Walker reread the paragraph and said he would read another instruction that would make the point clearer.

The new explanation, read rapidly and nonstop by the judge, went like this:

"If you find from the evidence that at the time the defendant shot and killed Sen. Robert Kennedy his mental capacity had been substantially reduced, whether caused by mental illness or intoxication or a combination of mental illness and imbibing intoxicating beverages, or any other cause, or if you find that the defendant's mental capacity was diminished or reduced to the extent that you have a reasonable doubt whether he did or could maturely and meaningfully premeditate, deliberate and reflect upon the gravity of his contemplated act or form an intent to kill, you cannot convict him of a willful, deliberate or premeditated murder of the first degree but you may find him guilty of murder in the second degree if you are convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that he had the mental capacity to harbor or entertain malice aforethought."

President Talks To Republican Women's Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — Calling them his three "great issues," President Nixon has promised to make real progress by next year toward peace, curbing inflation and restoring law and order.

In his first appearance as President before a huge party gathering—the 17th Annual Republican Women's Conference banquet, with 4,800 guests—Nixon said Wednesday night:

"I ask you women here to hold me and all my Cabinet colleagues responsible on these three things."

He promised to return next year with a report that "we have made real progress."

Grave Doubts Felt For Rest; Nixon Silent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bodies of two crewmen from the U.S. Navy reconnaissance plane shot down by North Korea have been found in the Sea of Japan and there are grave doubts that any of the 29 other crew members survived, the Pentagon said today.

"We regret to report that the destroyer USS Tucker has recovered the bodies of one officer and one enlisted crew member from the EC121 downed over the Sea of Japan," a Pentagon statement said.

"Individual identifications are being withheld until notification of next of kin has been accomplished."

"We are now gravely concerned about the chances of finding any survivors. The search is being continued."

The Tucker recovered the bodies about 17 miles north of the site where the first signs of wreckage from the plane, a four-engine, propeller-driven converted Super Constellation, were spotted about 120 miles southeast of the North Korean coast, the Pentagon reported.

In addition to the bodies, the destroyer recovered life jackets and pieces of fuselage bearing shrapnel holes, the statement stated.

A wide search for the plane and its 31 crewmen has been under way since the plane was reported missing Monday after North Korea said it had downed the aircraft for allegedly violating its territory.

All that was turned up earlier had been shrapnel-shredded bits of fuselage and other material. No sign of the crewmen was reported and officials doubt their survival.

Officials indicated Wednesday the President was expected to issue some sort of protest to North Korea, and there has been no evidence of a change. But no decision had been reported about how this would be done.

Among the choices the administration was understood to have considered was a public statement expressing the United States' protest. The American

Klein Sees Calm Back

WASHINGTON (AP) — Herbert G. Klein, President Nixon's information chief, says the new administration has "calmed the waters of America" in less than 100 days in office.

Klein, director of communications for the executive branch, spoke Wednesday to the annual convention of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, which also was scheduled to hear speeches today from Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird and consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

"I believe the major impact President Nixon has had so far," said Klein, a former newspaper editor himself, "is that he has calmed the waters of America."

"We don't claim we've solved all the problems. But the President is trying now to give the American people confidence in him, as one who is candid with them, and one who takes strong positions."

Klein said the administration is working on 25 domestic programs that will be presented to Congress this year.

Bill To Change Branch Colleges Comes Under Fire

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Education, Health and Welfare Committee contends that the "biggest problem" with a bill to allow university branch campuses to become four year colleges is "too many promises."

Sen. Oakley C. Collins, R-18 Ironton, referred to an administration bill to allow Ohio's 19 state university branch campuses to become four year colleges when they reach a 4,000 enrollment.

In recent years, the Lima and Mansfield branches of Ohio State University complained they have not received their fair share of money since operating funds are appropriated directly to OSU.

The committee also heard testimony on a bill to make the Mansfield branch a four-year college by 1971.

Rep. Richard M. Christiansen D - 17 Mansfield, said he hoped the legislature would approve it.

The committee also recommended for passage and sent to the Senate an administration bill to provide tuition grants from $100 to $900 a year for needy students at private colleges and universities.

The committee also heard testimony for the second straight week from proponents of a bill to provide statewide fluoridation of water supplies.

In earlier legislative action Wednesday, the Senate adopted 31-0 a bill to exempt public utility holding companies from the franchise tax.

Sen. Howard C. Cook, R - 1 Toledo, said it would make it possible for six electric companies to form a holding company in Ohio.

The companies are Toledo Edison, Ohio Edison, Dayton Power and Light, Cincinnati Gas and Electric, Cleveland

HUD Grant Explained

Mayor Richard L. Gerhardt today further explained how the newly awarded HUD "701 Planning" grant would be used.

The Mayor stated that when Circleville was given its "701 Planning" grant last year, HUD had deleted three studies which had been originally included. The three study reports were then submitted for consideration so that a complete and more comprehensive master plan could be accomplished.

The supplemental grant of $4,398 will enable completion of a capital improvement program and budget, a central business district study and a general report on plan execution and review for the city. This would complete the preliminary phase of general planning for the city and will permit a general overall Master Plan to be made.

The Circleville Planning Commission will administer the funds and coordinate the new studies with those studies already underway.

Iraq Blasts Guerrillas Inside Nation

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Iraqi government has told Palestinian guerrilla organizations that it objects to their presence in Iraq, the Communist newspaper Al Nida said today.

The paper published the text of a recent note from Iraq's ruling revolutionary council to the main guerrilla organizations. Guerrilla sources here indicated the published note was authentic.

Signs of friction between the Iraqi government and the guerrillas appeared earlier this month when the Baghdad regime stopped broadcasting communiques issued by Al Fatah, the largest of the guerrilla organizations. The broadcasts were mainly beamed to the Persian Gulf emirates, whose people contribute large sums to the guerrillas.

The Baath party regime in Iraq also formed its own guerrilla group, called the Arab Liberation Front, and said its activities will be ideological as well as military.

Despite its refusal to cooperate with the guerrillas, the Iraqi regime of President Ahmed Hassan Al Bakr has rejected a political settlement with Israel.

The note indicated that presence of the commandos in Iraq has caused the regime internal problems. It said enemies of the Baathists, such as insurgent Kurdish tribesmen in northern Iraq and Communists, had masqueraded a commandos and undertaken subversive activity. Therefore, it said, guerrillas were forbidden to wear uniforms in Iraqi cities.

Certain commandos had also been contacting political opponents of the regime the note added, and henceforth anyone having such contacts would be banished.

There has been no reply to the note, but a delegation has gone to Baghdad to talk it over, sources said.

Gas Station Attendant's Slain

CINCINNATI (AP) — A gasoline service station attendant, who would have been 20 years old tomorrow, was found slain today in the station on Hopple street, about 3 1/2 miles northwest of the downtown district.

He was identified as Grady Cooper of Bellevue, Ky.

It first was believed he might have been shot in a holdup but police later said there were no indications that any money had been taken.

William Voges of Newport, Ky., owner of the station, said Cooper had been working at the station about eight weeks, the last six of which had been on the night shift. He said Cooper was to have been married in July.

Police said Cooper's younger brother, Gary, told them he was sleeping in a car in the lubrication room of the station but did not hear anything.

Grady's body was found on the floor of the main part of the station by a vending machine service man.

Terror Reigns In Ann Arbor; 5th Girl Slain

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP) — Frightened coeds at two universities have armed themselves with switchblade knives, tear gas sprays or other protective devices while authorities investigate the killings of five girls.

The latest victim—who also was the youngest—was 13-year-old Dawn Basom, a junior high school student in Ypsilanti.

Her body, stripped to a blouse and brassiere, was found Wednesday on a rural road four miles north of Eastern Michigan University. An electric cord was wrapped around her throat and eight-inch-long gashes were carved on her chest and stomach.

"It's creepy—it's frightening," said Mary Burke, 19, of Howell, an Eastern Michigan freshman who lives in a dormitory at the 13,000-student school.

Since August 1967, the bodies of two Eastern Michigan coeds, one University of Michigan coed, a 16-year-old girl and the Basom girl have been found within a radius of less than 10 miles.

Coed hitch-hiking to and from the campus has virtually ended, said women students at both Eastern Michigan and the University of Michigan, which is in Ann Arbor, six miles west of Ypsilanti.

Most coeds said they have adopted a "buddy system" of walking either with a male friend or with at least three other girls when venturing out at night.

"My boyfriend gave me this switchblade," said Roni Friedman of Portland, Maine, a pretty, 19-year-old blonde nursing student at the University of Michigan.

"And I carry it everywhere," she said. "When you're scared you do these things. My friends all carry things on key chains." She said a fraternity in Ann Arbor recently held a sale on tear gas devices designed to ward off an attacker.

Most customers were coeds, she said.

A number of coeds said they had been the object of prowlers or persons trying to pick them up, or knew coeds who had.

"I found a man's hand on my window sill about 2 a.m. a couple months ago," said Judy Long, 18, of Bloomfield Hills, a

Arrest 50 KSU Students

Smashed Door, Invaded Building

KENT, Ohio (AP) — A 70-man police force surrounded a building on the Kent State University campus Wednesday night and arrested 50 demonstrators who had smashed a door to get inside the building three hours earlier. Seven other students were also arrested and charged with inciting to riot.

Ohio State Highway Patrolmen, assisted by Portage County Sheriff's deputies, Kent City and campus police, escorted the students, who were members of and sympathizers with Students for a Democratic Society, from the music and speech building.

As they were led to waiting University buses to be taken to the Portage County Courthouse at Ravenna, cheers went up from some 200 students gathered behind a line of police three-deep at the buildings entrance.

A university spokesman said 50 students would be charged with forcible entry. He said 35 of the students were male and 22 female.

The spokesman said the State Highway Patrol made the arrests peacefully after being called in by the campus security chief at the administration's request. He said the action was taken after the students ignored a university request to leave the building.

Between 70 and 100 students had broken into the building in the afternoon by smashing a glass door. The break-in came after a campus rally attended by more than 1,000 students.

Signs of friction between the Iraqi government and the guerrillas appeared earlier this month when the Baghdad regime stopped broadcasting communiques issued by Al Fatah, the largest of the guerrilla organizations. The broadcasts were mainly beamed to the Persian Gulf emirates, whose people contribute large sums to the guerrillas.

The Baath party regime in Iraq also formed its own guerrilla group, called the Arab Liberation Front, and said its activities will be ideological as well as military.

Despite its refusal to cooperate with the guerrillas, the Iraqi regime of President Ahmed Hassan Al Bakr has rejected a political settlement with Israel.

The note indicated that presence of the commandos in Iraq has caused the regime internal problems. It said enemies of the Baathists, such as insurgent Kurdish tribesmen in northern Iraq and Communists, had masqueraded a commandos and undertaken subversive activity. Therefore, it said, guerrillas were forbidden to wear uniforms in Iraqi cities.

Certain commandos had also been contacting political opponents of the regime the note added, and henceforth anyone having such contacts would be banished.

There has been no reply to the note, but a delegation has gone to Baghdad to talk it over, sources said.

Gas Station Attendant's Slain

CINCINNATI (AP) — A gasoline service station attendant, who would have been 20 years old tomorrow, was found slain today in the station on Hopple street, about 3 1/2 miles northwest of the downtown district.

He was identified as Grady Cooper of Bellevue, Ky.

It first was believed he might have been shot in a holdup but police later said there were no indications that any money had been taken.

William Voges of Newport, Ky., owner of the station, said Cooper had been working at the station about eight weeks, the last six of which had been on the night shift. He said Cooper was to have been married in July.

Police said Cooper's younger brother, Gary, told them he was sleeping in a car in the lubrication room of the station but did not hear anything.

Grady's body was found on the floor of the main part of the station by a vending machine service man.

Terror Reigns In Ann Arbor; 5th Girl Slain

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP) — Frightened coeds at two universities have armed themselves with switchblade knives, tear gas sprays or other protective devices while authorities investigate the killings of five girls.

The latest victim—who also was the youngest—was 13-year-old Dawn Basom, a junior high school student in Ypsilanti.

Her body, stripped to a blouse and brassiere, was found Wednesday on a rural road four miles north of Eastern Michigan University. An electric cord was wrapped around her throat and eight-inch-long gashes were carved on her chest and stomach.

"It's creepy—it's frightening," said Mary Burke, 19, of Howell, an Eastern Michigan freshman who lives in a dormitory at the 13,000-student school.

Since August 1967, the bodies of two Eastern Michigan coeds, one University of Michigan friend or with at least three other girls when venturing out at night.

"My boyfriend gave me this switchblade," said Roni Friedman of Portland, Maine, a pretty, 19-year-old blonde nursing student at the University of Michigan.

"And I carry it everywhere," she said. "When you're scared you do these things. My friends all carry things on key chains." She said a fraternity in Ann Arbor recently held a sale on tear gas devices designed to ward off an attacker.

Most customers were coeds, she said.

A number of coeds said they had been the object of prowlers or persons trying to pick them up, or knew coeds who had.

"I found a man's hand on my window sill about 2 a.m. a couple months ago," said Judy Long, 18, of Bloomfield Hills, a

GNP Boost Said Mostly Inflationary

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Gross National Product climbed to an annual rate of $903.4 billion in the first quarter of 1969, the government reported today, but the rate of increase was slower than in any quarter last year.

The GNP annual rate, which attempts to set a dollar figure on the value of all the nation's goods and services, rose $16 billion in the January-to-March quarter, a one and three-quarters per cent increase.

The rise had a strong inflationary tinge. The Commerce Department said the volume of goods and services actually rose only three quarters of one per cent and the greater part of the increase—one per cent—reflected the constant upward push of prices.

The $16 billion increase compares with one of $16.4 billion in the final quarter of 1968. The increases in the first through third quarters last year were $20.2 billion, $21.6 billion and $18.6 billion.

Nevada's 'Marryin' Sams' Hit By Legislative Curbs

By MIKE DOAN Associated Press Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Starting in 1971, couples popping into Nevada for a quick wedding may hear the words "I now pronounce you man and wife" from a clerk behind a counter.

Justices of the peace, sometimes known as Marryin' Sams, will be confined to courtroom duties under a law passed this week by the Nevada Legislature. They'll be replaced in wedding ceremonies by court-hired marriage commissioners.

"People won't run for justice of the peace," said Justice of the Peace Roy Woolter of Las Vegas.

"It takes the dignity away from the ceremony," said a colleague, Joe Pavlikowski.

"The new marriage commissioners had better be good-looking men," said Dist. Atty. George Franklin, who supported the bill. "A lot of people just won't want a woman marrying them."

Justices of the peace have interrupted murder arraignments to perform weddings for $5 and tips. State Sen. Mel Close said they averaged an estimated $100,000 a year, making them the highest paid public officials outside of the presidency.

In Las Vegas, the county began collecting on Jan. 1 the $5 fee previously retained by the justices.

Gov. Paul Laxalt said he would sign the bill, which he called "healthy legislation since it will permit justices of the peace to concentrate on their judicial functions."

The bill will not restrict wedding chapel operators, who expect to get some of the justices' business.

Proceeds from the pancake day are used to provide trade and technical school scholarships to needy students in one of the four high schools in the county.

Chevrolet topped the list of new cars sold in the county with a total of 37.

Ford was second with 28; Pontiac, 11; Buick, 7; Plymouth, Dodge and Oldsmobile, six; Cadillac, Chrysler and Volkswagen, 3; GMC and Rambler, 2; Fiat, Diamond Reo, Opel and International, 1.

Titles were issued to 19 mobile homes; one motorcycle, five travel trailers and three boats and motors.

The English language has changed considerably in the past three centuries. When King James I described St. Paul's Cathedral as "amusing," "awful" and "artificial" in the 17th century, the architect, Sir Christopher Wren, was not offended. The king simply meant that the cathedral was pleasing, awe-inspiring and skillfully constructed.

Gains led losses by a bit less than 100 issues.

"The uneasiness some investors felt Wednesday over North Korea's shooting down our Navy plane apparently has eased somewhat," an analyst said, citing indications the administration would deal with the incident through diplomatic action rather than military retaliation.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .2 at 332.6, with industrials unchanged, rails unchanged, and utilities up .3.

Prices generally were higher on the American Stock Exchange, with 12 of the 20 most active issues ahead and 8 lower.

GNP Boost Said Mostly Inflationary

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Gross National Product climbed to an annual rate of $93.4 billion in the first quarter of 1969, the government reported today, but the rate of increase was slower than in any quarter last year.

The GNP annual rate, which attempts to set a dollar figure on the value of all the nation's goods and services, rose $16 billion in the January-March quarter, a one and three-quarters per cent increase.

The rise had a strong inflationary tinge. The Commerce Department said the volume of goods and services actually rose only three quarters of one per cent and the greater part of the increase—one per cent—reflected the constant upward push of prices.

The $16 billion increase compares with one of $16.4 billion in the final quarter of 1968. The increases in the first through third quarters last year were $20.2 billion, $21.6 billion and $18.6 billion.

Nevada's 'Marryin' Sams' Hit By Legislative Curbs

By MIKE DOAN Associated Press Writer LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Starting in 1971, couples popping into Nevada for a quick wedding may hear the words "I now pronounce you man and wife" from a clerk behind a counter.

Justices of the peace have interrupted murder arraignments to perform weddings for $5 and tips. State Sen. Mel Close said they averaged an estimated $100,000 a year, making them the highest paid public officials outside of the presidency.

In Las Vegas, the county began collecting on Jan. 1 the $5 fee previously retained by the justices.

Gov. Paul Laxalt said he would sign the bill, which he called "healthy legislation since it will permit justices of the peace to concentrate on their judicial functions."

The bill will not restrict wedding chapel operators, who expect to get some of the justices' business.

153 New Vehicles During March

There were 153 new vehicles registered in Pickaway County during March, according to a recent report by Sara Dresbach, clerk of courts.

The court issued a total of 1,329 titles, 519 notations of liens and 470 cancellations of liens during the month.

Fees of $3,004.40 were collected from the issuance of titles, $39,297.50 from dealers sales tax and $5,624.23 in casual and use tax, according to the report.

Chevrolet topped the list of new cars sold in the county with a total of 37.

Ford was second with 28; Pontiac, 11; Buick, 7; Plymouth, Dodge and Oldsmobile, six; Cadillac, Chrysler and Volkswagen, 3; GMC and Rambler, 2; Fiat, Diamond Reo, Opel and International, 1.

Titles were issued to 19 mobile homes; one motorcycle, five travel trailers and three boats and motors.

The English language has changed considerably in the past three centuries. When King James I described St. Paul's Cathedral as "amusing," "awful" and "artificial" in the 17th century, the architect, Sir Christopher Wren, was not offended. The king simply meant that the cathedral was pleasing, awe-inspiring and skillfully constructed.

Theft Cases Top Juvenile Court Docket

Two teenage boys charged with theft topped the docket of Pickaway County Juvenile Court recently.

The two 16-year-old boys, one from Orient and the other from Grove City, were charged with two counts of theft.

Judge Guy Cline ruled that the youths were guilty of stealing $350 worth of property from Omer Crego on March 9, and gasoline from Russell Younklin March 15.

Both boys were placed on probation for three years and ordered to complete 100 hours of community work.

In other cases before the court a 16-year-old Orient youth was found guilty of school truancy. He was placed on three years probation and sentenced to two weeks detention.

Bruce Griffey, 18, of 1341 S. Pickaway St., forfeited a $15 bond set on a charge of speeding.

Ged Dresbach, 18, Route 4, was fined $5 plus costs for making unnecessary noise.

Larry Gillian, 17, of 375 E. Ohio St., was found guilty of failure to yield the right of way. He was fined $10 plus costs and had his license suspended three weeks. The fine was suspended.

Charles Imler, 17, Route 4, charged with speeding, received a suspended $10 fine plus costs and had his license restricted for six weeks.

At the close of World War I, the United States had almost one million drug addicts. During Prohibition there were twice as many federal convictions for drug offenses as for liquor violations.

Bill To Regulate Pipelines Urged

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Bills to establish state regulations over oil pipelines were to be introduced in the Ohio House today by Rep. George E. Mastics R-52 Fairview Park.

Mastics pointed to a recent pipeline failure in Lima that caused 7,000 persons to evacuate their homes.

"I am appalled at the fact presently no laws in Ohio regulate pipeline safety," Mastics said.

Mastics said a girl was killed in Van Wert County in 1965 when propane gas was leaking from a pipeline exploded. A ruptured pipeline in the Huron River killed thousands of fish last August, he said.

CORONADO APPLIANCES — FAMOUS FOR OVER FORTY YEARS!

French Obduracy

On the surface, French-American relations have improved since the change of administrations in Washington. The cordiality evidenced by President de Gaulle after President Nixon's inauguration now has found expression in Foreign Minister Debre's reference to "the new climate of trust" between the two nations.

With a touch of the old French hauteur, Debre attributes the improvement to a "more accurate evaluation of the European goals of French policy, which President Nixon has analyzed perfectly." That is, the new spirit of appreciation emanates principally from Washington.

Source of the change is less important than the need for results. Thus far, these have not been forthcoming from France. As one member of the U.S. NATO delegation expressed it, "the French are friendlier but their policies remain as rigid as ever."

That rigidity originated in De Gaulle's concept of a Europe divorced from its postwar dependence on the United States. In this view, France would serve as a "third force" offsetting U.S. and Soviet power and stimulating a detente between East and West throughout Europe.

Events haven't fulfilled the general's dream. Indeed, France's postwar influence has been more vocal than actual; in some ways more obstructive than constructive.

Ways To Stop Thief

Despite highly publicized "campaigns" to cut the automobile theft rate, it has soared to double the number of thefts in 1960.

Last year the total reached $15,000 in the U.S., nearly one of every 100 registered vehicles. And police and insurance company report indicate that professional thieves have little trouble in "converting" a stolen vehicle into a seemingly legitimate one, ready for sale.

Frequently police cannot quickly tell whether a car is stolen. Thieves draw up false bills of sale.

There is some hope for help in such mechanical devices as a new lock system that makes cars harder to steal. The ignition key has been moved to the steering column in some 1969 models (some 1925 models had this feature), and when the key is removed the ignition, steering wheel and transmission are all locked.

Nevertheless, the vast majority of thefts are of unlocked cars and in nearly half the cases the keys are left in the ignition.

Motorists can stop most of these thefts by merely locking their cars and taking the keys.

Fact Or Fantasy?

President de Gaulle's threat to vacate his office immediately should the April 27 referendum on his proposed governmental reforms be defeated, is a familiar act of brinkmanship resorted to by the French leader several times in the past to arouse the French voters sufficiently to put across one of his pet programs.

"There cannot be the slightest doubt on this subject," he told his countrymen. "On the reply the country makes to what I have asked will depend the continuation of my mandate or my immediate departure."

Senate reform and government decentralization will be voted on in the referendum. Critics who have labeled the De Gaulle plea as making a mockery of the whole procedure remember vividly how successful the general has been in using a similar threat in previous elections.

So far he has not lost a single one of his all-or-nothing challenges.

Enemy Of Bill Of Rights

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The members of the Students for a Democratic Society ought to have their noses rubbed in the Bill of Rights, particularly the First Amendment that guarantees freedom of speech and assembly to everybody, anti-SDS-ers included.

At Harvard, Yale, Cornell, Pennsylvania, Pomona and Stanford, faculty groups have voted to end academic credit for ROTC or for any military training and education. The SDS considers this a victory, but even from its own standpoint it is not a good thing. For ROTC has, over the years, given us a military force that is predominantly civilian in its orientation. More than sixty per cent of the U.S. officer corps in peacetime consists of graduates of our civilian institutions, and even now, in the midst of the Vietnamese War, forty per cent of our military leaders above the rank of sergeant are civilian-trained.

If the SDS succeeds in its anti-ROTC campaign, it will change the proportions, giving us a largely professionalized military leadership. Any such leadership would know what to do with the SDS: it would simply shoot the boys down. If the SDS wants to run the dangers of a military dictatorship, it is now taking all the preliminary steps.

The Harvard effrontery, demanding total banishment of the military from the campus, after the Harvard authorities had given the SDS boys everything that they could reasonably expect short of depriving the far more numerous anti-SDS campus

contingent of its own rights under the First Amendment.

On the theory that a university should control its own subject matter, ROTC teachers were deprived of academic rank and their courses changed to voluntary student sparetime activity, with no credits toward graduation.

The excuses given for knuckling under to the radicals were not wholly consistent, for the Harvard faculty had quite definitely lost some of its control over the course known as Social Relations 148: Social Change in America, in which students are free to pick their own subject matter and teach it in their own way. Social Relations 148 gets full academic credit as ROTC does not.

What the SDS now presumes to do is to dictate the nature of spare-time activities to the campus majorities. Students who want to pursue ROTC studies even on a voluntary basis are to be denied their right. The U.S. must be deprived of the possibility of recruiting and training its officers from among civilians. In short, the SDS wants to deprive us of an army that is representative of the people.

Indeed, it doesn't want us to have any army at all.

If they had their way, the SDS authoritarians would render a nation of 200,000,000 prey to the blackmail of Soviet Russia on its eastern flanks, Maoist China in the Pacific and Fidel Castro anywhere south of the Caribbean. But the SDS members aren't going to have their way. They may kill ROTC on some of our more pusillanimous campuses, but the military is going to get its officers from some source. We may, in the end be faced with bigger appropriations for enlarged service academies.

It's time the trustees and the alumni started doing something about universities that continue to pamper the SDS when the boys act like Fascists. Many of our colleges aren't worth the money that goes to them these days, and a student who for financial reasons is deprived of what passes for education on some campuses is really being done a good turn.

THE MOTHER of seven very active children was showing a new neighbor through the house. The neighbor was startled by the sight of a fireman's brass pole running down to the room below, and asked, "Where in the world does that pole end up?" The mother's triumphant answer was, "Right smack in the middle of the bathtub!"

One of the many difficulties confronting the restaurant owners who take genuine pride in the food and wines they serve is exemplified by the proprietor of an exclusive and expensive dining place in New York who complained, "My head chef is driving me to distraction. Not only was he out drunk three nights last week, but when he's here, his dishes are so bad, three of my best customers swore they'd never come here again." "Why don't you fire him?" he was asked. "I don't dare," admitted the proprietor. "Judging by previous experience, the next one will be twice as bad!"

QUICKIES:

After his first day of piloting a taxi through the maze of Manhattan traffic, a driver turned in his cab and announced, "This job is not for me. I just haven't got the vocabulary for it." A woman served a succulent turkey for Thanksgiving dinner and the guests were taken to death. The cook had forgotten to take the feathers off.

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

There is no better indication that spring and summer are on the way than the first crocus or the courage of the ground hog. Certainly the calendar can no longer be depended on since the seasons have so definitely been shifting during the past half century. The most dependable of all indications that spring is in the air are the baseball rookies sliding into home plate or a pitcher warming up in the bull pen.

This is a signal to take the protective coverings off tennis racquets, golf bags, and baseball equipment in anticipation of the spring and summer athletics.

It must be remembered at this time that many muscles in our bodies have been lying dormant and inactive during most of the winter season. It is imperative, therefore, that these unused muscles be activated slowly so that injury to the delicate muscle fibres will be avoided.

Our enthusiasm is so great and our anxiety to play ball in a hurry often does an injustice to the tendons, muscles, and joints that need slow breaking in. The proper pacing and gradual increasing activity is a firm rule by coaches in amateur and professional circles. Their fitness programs demand long periods of warm-up activity, starting perhaps with 15 minutes of muscle loosening exercises. They are always aware that over-exertion that reaches a point of fatigue is a poor way to get in trim.

The resilience of young children and adolescents is great and they usually are not as troubled by too vigorous exercise. A safeguard for them is that they use safe, proper and good equipment for any sport. There should be no departure from this rule.

The middle-aged athlete can be protected by what I believe to be an excellent investment, namely a complete general examination. Only by a careful study can he be prevented from over-indulging in exercises that might do him far more harm than good.

Exercise must be custom-made for every age group and every age group can benefit from exercise. The older athlete must learn his limitations and avoid strenuous competition with the younger and heartier athletes. His memory of active tennis singles must be tempered by the fact that his arms, legs, word. That's a prize boner!

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP)—In launching a franchise enterprise, a type of business in which individual proprietors are licensed to sell a specialized product or service, two very basic requirements must be met.

First, the franchiser must be able to sell territories in which the purchaser, the franchisee, will have exclusive rights. Second, the franchisee then must be able to sell the product.

At the moment, some celebrity-promoted franchises, particularly in quick service foods, are off to a fast start on requirement No. 1. The big test, however, may still lie ahead.

"Some companies are able to sell the franchises," says Thomas Robinson, executive director of the International Franchise Association "but they couldn't care less what comes later."

There are instances of disturbing failures.

Dr. Charles Vaughn, head of the Boston College Franchise Center, tells of one operation he was asked to reorganize. It involved two well-known members of political life and a celebrated entertainer.

"The franchise director apparently sold the personages to prospective franchisees. But when the franchisees tried to sell the products they could not." In fact, Vaughn says, they weren't even aware of the product to be sold.

Vaughn believes that some franchising is very risky, but that often the rewards are great. He compares some of them to oil investment syndicates in which money is collected even before beginning to drill the well.

In Vaughn's view there is little danger in some of the fast moving, celebrity-backed franchises if people understand the risks, and so long as franchisees are sold to people who can afford the risk.

Once the franchises are sold, and in today's atmosphere that isn't too difficult, the question of product acceptability becomes paramount. Some critics wonder if America can eat all the sandwiches and snacks and burgers.

Thomas Marshall, president of Broadway Joe's Inc., a franchiser of roast beef, shrimp and hamburger restaurants, is one who feels that not only is America's appetite devouringly large, but that America's time is increasingly scarce.

"People don't have time to sit down and mash potatoes," he says. "Faster living means quicker eating. I don't think the franchises have even scratched the surface of this demand."

The franchise food servers also have the notion that they are in the same role as the motel chains played a decade or two ago; that is, that inevitably they will replace old-fashioned mom-and-pop restaurants.

When the big motel chains, largely franchise operations, began dotting the landscape they brought with them an improvement in accommodations, service and food, and soon dominated the industry. The food franchisers hope to do the same.

A few questions remain to be answered, however, and among them are these:

Can a celebrity with little personal investment be as responsible as an ordinary businessman? Just how much will the celebrity's name add to the attraction. And if the public "buys" the celebrity, will it also buy the celebrity's roast beef and onion rings?

One of the main attractions of celebrities is to get the franchisees off to big starts by appearing at openings. Singer Tony Bennett, for instance, is expected to attend openings of Tony Bennett Spaghetti Houses.

This chain of low-priced, self-service restaurants will feature a dinner for a family of four for $5 or less. Included will be recorded Tony Bennett songs during the day and musicians at night.

(The chain is now emerging from Houston, Tex., where its first unit is expected to be opened Aug. 1, with Bennett attending.)

Ray Kroc, chairman of McDonald's hamburger chain, comments that "food people are going to succeed in food and show business people in show business."

Lots of others, however, claim that food franchisers using the publicity and acceptance of celebrities are going to revolutionize the restaurant business.

NEW YORK (AP) — What is it about women that annoys men?

While most men admire women, or pretend to for one reason or another, that admiration isn't altogether wholehearted. There are some things about the feminine mystique that the male mind dislikes, resents, envies or is baffled by.

A number of men asked recently to state what they felt was wrong with the female sex expressed a wide variety of misgivings. Here are a few of the more interesting replies:

"Women? Bah, humbugs!"

"They are so unpredictable. If you try to surprise and please them by bringing them home a box of candy, they tell you they've just gone on a diet. If you bring them roses because you know they've always liked roses, they want to know why you didn't bring chrysanthemums because chrysanthemums go better with the new draperies."

"When they are too dumb to know what's really going on, they pretend they do by trying to look mysterious."

"The only girl who annoyed me was the one who always said no to everything I ever asked her until the day I asked her to marry me. Then she really gave the wrong answer. She said yes."

"What's wrong with women? That's a good question. Pull up a chair, son—this is going to take all afternoon."

"The worst thing about them is that, like politicians, they are born fence straddlers. No matter what happens and how it turns out, they always manage to be in a position to claim they were right. A man will sometimes admit he was wrong, a woman—never."

"I think their worst trait is the mean revenge they take on a man. If he keeps them waiting six months before he proposes to them, they get even by making him wait on them hand and foot for the next 40 or 50 years."

"Personally, the only real fault I find with my wife is that her snoring keeps me awake all night, and the next morning she claims she didn't sleep a wink because of the street noises outside. When I tell her she was snoring, she calls me a liar."

"They cheat at cards—even if you're only playing penny poker."

"Women are born arrogant. The only thing that teaches them humility is wrinkles, and if they can afford to get their faces lifted they never get humble."

"All of them are too talky. They insist on thinking out loud when they have nothing on their minds. The less they have to say, the more determined they are to say it."

But the most common criticism of women voiced by most men was the adage that has summed up male bewilderment on this subject for perhaps centuries:

"You can't get along with 'em, and you can't get along without 'em."

French Obduracy

On the surface, French-American relations have improved since the change of administrations in Washington. The cordiality evidenced by President de Gaulle after President Nixon's inauguration now has found expression in Foreign Minister Debre's reference to "the new climate of trust" between the two nations.

With a touch of the old French hauteur, Debre attributes the improvement to a "more accurate evaluation of the European goals of French policy, which President Nixon has analyzed perfectly." That is, the new spirit of appreciation emanates principally from Washington.

Source of the change is less important than the need for results. Thus far, these have not been forthcoming from France. As one member of the U.S. NATO delegation expressed it, "the French are friendlier but their policies remain as rigid as ever."

That rigidity originated in De Gaulle's concept of a Europe divorced from its postwar dependence on the United States. In this view, France would serve as a "third force" offsetting U.S. and Soviet power and stimulating a detente between East and West throughout Europe.

Events haven't fulfilled the general's dream. Indeed, France's postwar influence has been more vocal than actual; in some ways more obstructive than constructive.

Ways To Stop Thief

Despite highly publicized "campaigns" to cut the automobile theft rate, it has soared to double the number of thefts in 1960.

Last year the total reached $15,000 in the U.S., nearly one of every 100 registered vehicles. And police and insurance company report indicate that professional thieves have little trouble in "converting" a stolen vehicle into a seemingly legitimate one, ready for sale.

Frequently police cannot quickly tell whether a car is stolen. Thieves draw up false bills of sale.

There is some hope for help in such mechanical devices as a new lock system that makes cars harder to steal. The ignition key has been moved to the steering column in some 1969 models (some 1925 models had this feature), and when the key is removed the ignition, steering wheel and transmission are all locked.

Nevertheless, the vast majority of thefts are of unlocked cars and in nearly half the cases the keys are left in the ignition.

Motorists can stop most of these thefts by merely locking their cars and taking the keys.

Fact Or Fantasy?

President de Gaulle's threat to vacate his office immediately should the April 27 referendum on his proposed governmental reforms be defeated, is a familiar act of brinkmanship resorted to by the French leader several times in the past to arouse the French voters sufficiently to put across one of his pet programs.

"There cannot be the slightest doubt on this subject," he told his countrymen. "On the reply the country makes to what I have asked will depend the continuation of my mandate or my immediate departure."

Senate reform and government decentralization will be voted on in the referendum. Critics who have labeled the De Gaulle plea as making a mockery of the whole procedure remember vividly how successful the general has been in using a similar threat in previous elections.

So far he has not lost a single one of his all-or-nothing challenges.

Enemy Of Bill Of Rights

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The members of the Students for a Democratic Society ought to have their noses rubbed in the Bill of Rights, particularly the First Amendment that guarantees freedom of speech and assembly to everybody, anti-SDSers included.

At Harvard, Yale, Cornell, Pennsylvania, Pomona and Stanford, faculty groups have voted to end academic credit for ROTC or for any military training and education. The SDS considers this a victory, but even from its own standpoint it is not a good thing. For ROTC has, over the years, given us a military force that is predominantly civilian in its orientation. More than sixty per cent of the U.S. officer corps in peacetime consists of graduates of our civilian institutions, and even now, in the midst of the Vietnamese War, forty per cent of our military leaders above the rank of sergeant are civilian-trained.

If the SDS succeeds in its anti-ROTC campaign, it will change the proportions, giving us a largely professionalized military leadership. Any such leadership would know what to do with the SDS: it would simply shoot the boys down. If the SDS wants to run the dangers of a military dictatorship, it is now taking all the preliminary steps.

The Harvard effrontery, demanding total banishment of the military from the campus, after the Harvard authorities had given the SDS boys everything that they could reasonably expect short of depriving the far more numerous anti-SDS campus contingent of its own rights under the First Amendment.

On the theory that a university should control its own subject matter, ROTC teachers were deprived of academic rank and their courses changed to voluntary student sparetime activity, with no credits toward graduation.

The excuses given for knuckling under to the radicals were not wholly consistent, for the Harvard faculty had quite definitely lost some of its control over the course known as Social Relations 148: Social Change in America, in which students are free to pick their own subject matter and teach it in their own way. Social Relations 148 gets full academic credit as ROTC does not.

What the SDS now presumes to do is to dictate the nature of spare-time activities to the campus majorities. Students who want to pursue ROTC studies even on a voluntary basis are to be denied their right. The U.S. must be deprived of the possibility of recruiting and training its officers from among civilians. In short, the SDS wants to deprive us of an army that is representative of the people. Indeed, it doesn't want us to have any army at all.

If they had their way, the SDS authoritarians would render a nation of 200,000,000 prey to the blackmail of Soviet Russia on its eastern flanks, Maoist China in the Pacific and Fidel Castro anywhere south of the Caribbean. But the SDS members aren't going to have their way. They may kill ROTC on some of our more pusillanimous campuses, but the military is going to get its officers from some source. We may, in the end be faced with bigger appropriations for enlarged service academies.

It's time the trustees and the alumni started doing something about universities that continue to pamper the SDS when the boys act like Fascists. Many of our colleges aren't worth the money that goes to them these days, and a student who for financial reasons is deprived of what passes for education on some campuses is really being done a good turn.

Another note of warning. Springtime colds, because of over-exposure, can be as distressing and debilitating as winter ones. Discarding warm clothing too quickly can invite these colds.

Children on bicycles and skates must be reminded of the safety measures that were taught them last year. How to ride on the proper side of the street, and not after dusk, are two important safety teachings. Spring and summer bring more joy if athletic programs are carefully planned.

NEW YORK (AP)—In launching a franchise enterprise, a type of business in which individual proprietors are licensed to sell a specialized product or service, two very basic requirements must be met.

Coe died in Fayette Memorial Hospital several hours after an accident at the Fayette county Fairgrounds. Sheriff's deputies said Coe was riding in a sulky exercising a horse when the animal bolted, ran in a wide circle and rammed the sulky against the inside rail.

Coe, who was thrown over the rail, appeared at first not to have been hurt seriously, but later went to the hospital.

Just a few weeks ago Scott, who has been skating just over a year, carried home a first place gold medal in competitive skating.

When Scott was three, his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Hamilton, discovered their son had simply stopped growing. They learned he was stricken with a rare condition. His body rejected most of his food intake and part of his intestines was paralyzed.

In the autumn of 1967 his condition worsened and he was forced to take six-hour intravenous feedings. In the past seven years of his life had been one long journey from one hospital to another throughout the country. His mother estimated he had spent probably three of his 10 years in the hospital.

One day last November Scott convinced his parents to allow him to try his luck with ice skating at the new Bowling Green State University Ice Arena.

From there both his mental and physical condition soared upward.

He participated in a gym class for the first time and finished out the school year attending a full day instead of a half day of classes.

Key Club 'Slave' Sale Held Monday

Bowling Green professional skaters described him as a "natural" on ice. Last summer he skated six days a week and today he skates seven days a week including his time spent with a youth hockey team.

"Sometimes I think he spends more time at the ice arena than at home," his mother said. She added, "Actually, both my husband and I have to pinch ourselves every once in awhile just to prove everything is real . . . he's not supposed to be here, you know."

The annual Circleville High School Key Club "Slave Sale" was held Monday. Thirty members of the key club were "sold" to Kiwanians for a minimum of four hours labor each. Prices ranged from $1 to $1.60 per hour. Proceeds of the sale will be used to purchase American Flags for classrooms at Circleville High School.

Garden Club Discusses May Flower Show Plans

The Flower Show to be held May 10 and 11 at the new Historical Society Museum was discussed when Pickaway County Garden Club met Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. Collis Young, 311 E. Main St.

Mrs. Ned Harden moderated a panel of flower show judges composed of Mrs. Emmett Barnhart, Mrs. Theodore Huston, Mrs. John Eshelman and Mrs. Richard Jones.

Mrs. Eshelman demonstrated how a specimen flower is judged, using a narcissus as an example. It must have a good form, have freshness and substance, have a straight stem and be of clear color. The flower can be cleaned with gently using a cotton swab.

Carry a container of warm water to the garden and immediately place cut flowers in water. Flowers should be cut the evening before showing and kept in a cool place until morning, in order to be conditioned properly.

Mrs. Huston explained the schedule, a copy will be mailed to each member April 21. The theme of the show is "A Time To Remember." Schedules will be available at the Hatfield Realty office.

Mrs. Richard Jones discussed flowering branches illustrating with a branch of flowering quince. She said rarity will help in high rating of a branch, flower or plant. The branch to be exhibited must not be longer than 24 inches.

The grooming of house plants was the subject explained by Mrs. Ned Harden. She illustrated with an orchid plant in bloom that she had grown. She said only clean, healthy plants which are in flower pots in good proportion to the plants should be exhibited.

Mrs. James Irwin presided at the business meeting. Mrs. Darrell Hatfield, program chairman, reported on the new programs.

Mrs. John Eshelman read the announcement of the Columbus Regional Meeting and Luncheon to be held at the Imperial House on Morse Road at Route 71, Columbus, on May 15. Registration will be at 11 a.m. and luncheon at 12 noon followed by a Flower Arranging Demonstration by Mrs. John Knight Jr. Reservation are to be made with Mrs. William Thumm, 1720 Waltham Road, Columbus, by May 13. Mrs. Knight's subject is "Creativity Is—"

Mrs. Howard Davies requested that members bring garden literature, seed catalogues, plant and flower catalogues to her or Mrs. Frank Gans home for use by the Junior Garden Club which she and Mrs. Gans lead.

The golden beauty of forsythia combined with red tulips as the centerpiece arrangement, enhanced the beauty of the tea table. Mrs. James Irwin presided at the coffee service.

Mrs. Young was assisted by Mrs. Ione Reichedorf, Mrs. James P. Moffitt, Mrs. E. L. Montgomery, Mrs. M. E. Noggle, Mrs. Clarence McAbee and Mrs. Richard Justus.

Members desiring to enter an exhibit in the creativity class should choose their pedestal on which it is to be placed in the flower show at the home of Mrs. Willison Leist. The pedestals are of different heights.

Garden Club Discusses May Flower Show Plans

The Flower Show to be held May 10 and 11 at the new Historical Society Museum was discussed when Pickaway County Garden Club met Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. Collis Young, 311 E. Main St.

Mrs. Ned Harden moderated a panel of flower show judges composed of Mrs. Emmett Barnhart, Mrs. Theodore Huston, Mrs. John Eshelman and Mrs. Richard Jones.

Mrs. Eshelman demonstrated how a specimen flower is judged, using a narcissus as an example. It must have a good form, have freshness and substance, have a straight stem and be of clear color. The flower can be cleaned with gently using a cotton swab.

Carry a container of warm water to the garden and immediately place cut flowers in water. Flowers should be cut the evening before showing and kept in a cool place until morning, in order to be conditioned properly.

Mrs. Huston explained the schedule, a copy will be mailed to each member April 21. The theme of the show is "A Time To Remember." Schedules will be available at the Hatfield Realty office.

Mrs. Richard Jones discussed flowering branches illustrating with a branch of flowering quince. She said rarity will help in high rating of a branch, flower or plant. The branch to be exhibited must not be longer than 24 inches.

The grooming of house plants was the subject explained by Mrs. Ned Harden. She illustrated with an orchid plant in bloom that she had grown. She said only clean, healthy plants which are in flower pots in good proportion to the plants should be exhibited.

Mrs. James Irwin presided at the business meeting. Mrs. Darrell Hatfield, program chairman, reported on the new programs.

Mrs. John Eshelman read the announcement of the Columbus Regional Meeting and Luncheon to be held at the Imperial House on Morse Road at Route 71, Columbus, on May 15. Registration will be at 11 a.m. and luncheon at 12 noon followed by a Flower Arranging Demonstration by Mrs. John Knight Jr. Reservation are to be made with Mrs. William Thumm, 1720 Waltham Road, Columbus, by May 13. Mrs. Knight's subject is "Creativity Is—"

Mrs. Howard Davies requested that members bring garden literature, seed catalogues, plant and flower catalogues to her or Mrs. Frank Gans home for use by the Junior Garden Club which she and Mrs. Gans lead.

The golden beauty of forsythia combined with red tulips as the centerpiece arrangement, enhanced the beauty of the tea table. Mrs. James Irwin presided at the coffee service.

Mrs. Young was assisted by Mrs. Ione Reichendorfer, Mrs. James P. Moffitt, Mrs. E. L. Montgomery, Mrs. M. E. Noggle, Mrs. Clarence McAbee and Mrs. Richard Justus.

Members desiring to enter an exhibit in the creativity class should choose their pedestal on which it is to be placed in the flower show at the home of Mrs. Willson Leist. The pedestals are of different heights.

Wife Preservers

Some Days It Don't Pay To Get Up

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (AP) — A bank clerk in the small palm-fringed city of Inhambane who was suspended from his job went to the local mortuary and tried to commit suicide with a pistol. As he pulled the trigger he fainted and collapsed among the corpses. The bullet hit the ceiling instead of the clerk's head and he was taken to hospital suffering from shock.

A delightful hors d'oeuvre is made this way: sandwich two halves of a large pimiento-stuffed green olive with a piece of cheddar cheese. Wrap in bacon and bake in a very hot oven until bacon is crisp.

Huge Antenna To Improve Communications In Pacific

HONOLULU (AP) — A huge antenna that can snatch a space whisper and turn it into a loud message gets plugged into a global satellite network next Monday.

The antenna, taller than a 10-story building, will look onto an Intelsat 3, a commercial communications satellite hanging in orbit 22,300 miles above the Pacific Ocean.

It will forge a new major link in overseas communications between Hawaii and the U.S. mainland and Japan and the Philippines. Thailand and Australia.

Addition of the 390-ton antenna will make Hawaii's Paumotu earth station the world's largest for commercial satellite communications.

Court To Hear Trust Co. Appeal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court agreed Wednesday to hear an appeal by the Cleveland Trust Co. of a lower court ruling denying the company the right to vote certain shares of stock held in trust.

Cleveland Trust contends that the 1967 Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court decision overturned a course of conduct practiced for at least 40 years by state banks of Ohio.

The antenna, 97 feet across, will pull in the faint signals from the Intelsat 3 and sort them into a telephone call or a color television program.

With it, say the experts, a Hawaii resident telephoning Tokyo will hear the voice at the other end as clearly as if it were coming from the house next door.

The big dish also will handle signals that will keep hundreds of teletypes chattering across the wide Pacific basin—all in a fraction of a second.

The second Intelsat 3 satellite was launched Feb. 5. It is part of a series that began with the world's first commercial communications satellite, Early Bird, which flew into space from Cape Kennedy in 1965.

The two Intelsat 3s, each capable of handling 1,200 two-way voice circuits, are five times more powerful than their commercial predecessors.

Hawaii's Paumotu earth station is one of six U.S. stations located in five states and Puerto Rico. It sits on a bluff overlooking the ocean about 40 miles north of Honolulu.

The mainland stations are at Andover, Maine, Brewster Flat, Wash., Etam, W.Va., and Jamesburg, Calif.

They are jointly owned by communications firms under a formula set by the government.

Cow Auction Test Slated

ARCHBOLD, Ohio (AP) — A new selling procedure designed to create a more efficient marketing system will be introduced at a live stock auction here next Wednesday.

Cattle prices will be established for the first time on a carcass basis, with differentials being paid for both quality and carcass grades, according to how the animal actually measures up in the cooler.

The farmer payment equal to the true value of what he produces, plus maintain competition within the marketing system.

Packers also would benefit in that they would be able to buy cattle on the basis of carcass quality and cutability, rather than relying upon their skill in estimating what's under the hide of live animals.

About 150 cattle will be offered at the April 23 sale, arranged by the Independent Livestock Marketing Association of Columbus.

Planners say the new selling method should reflect back to

Orient State Institute Gets Funds

The Controlling Board of the State of Ohio has transferred $40,000 from Lebanon Correctional Institution to Orient State Institute, according to information given Pickaway-Ross Representative Myrl Shoemaker.

The funds were to be used for reconstruction of industrial shops at the correctional institution.

The money will be used to renovate the swine operation at Orient.

The department of Mental Hygiene and correction requested the transfer to increase the fat-hog operation at Orient from 950 head to 1,300 head per year and to furnish 500 feeder pigs for interchange to other institutions not farrowing pigs.

At the present time the swine operation at Orient as far as facilities are concerned is one of the poorest in the entire system according to the request signed by Martin A. Janis, director of the department of mental hygiene and correction.

Court Declares Man Permitted To Take Office

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — The Oregon Supreme Court ruled unanimously Wednesday that Republican Lee Johnson, who was elected last fall, can become attorney general.

Defeated incumbent Robert Y. Thornton, a Democrat, never left office because a tribunal of Oregon Circuit Court judges disqualified Johnson's election on ground he spent more of his personal money on his campaign than the state Corrupt Practices Act allows.

The Supreme Court overruled the tribunal. It found that Johnson spent $230 more than the law allows, but said the over-spending was not deliberate. The court said it must be deliberate to violate the law.

Johnson a Portland attorney and former state representative, defeated Thornton, 437,850 to 358,046, in the November general election in November.

Several transfers of non-teaching personnel within the lunchrooms were approved: Mary Beavers from assistant to head cook position, Edna Law from aide to assistant cook, Mary Agin from substitute basis to part-time cook.

Representatives of local OAPSE chapter talked with board regarding recognition of their organization with the right to negotiate for all non-teaching employees. The board agreed to permit each individual to continue to have the right to speak for himself rather than be required to have some one else speak for him.

A program of lawn care and a plan for planting trees on the high school grounds was presented by Jack Goode, local nurseryman. A portion of the lawn to the front of the building will be seeded and fertilized, several trees will be planted as part of the suggested landscaping plan.

Other routine board approval was given to:

Various reports were discussed pertaining to the Battelle research project, new school bus inspection procedures and progress on planning the new seventh and eighth grade building. An informational meeting will be held for teachers in room one, at Logan Elm High School, 3:30 p.m. April 22. Dale Heskett, educational consultant of Design Associates architectural firm will be available for a question and answer session concerning the educational planning for the new building.

A special board meeting was held during the month of April to complete the study on the merits of purchasing one 73-passenger transit bus to replace one of the older buses. Upon recommendation of Superintendent John Henn, and completion of a cost consideration study, one new transit bus was ordered for August delivery. The Board of Education is responsible for the safety of all students.

A portion of route 23 is of constant concern to board members due to heavy traffic and many large trucks on the road, consequently the new bus will be assigned to the driver that travels this route most often, Robert Young. This bus will be used on elementary and high school routes as well as for all educational trips, field trips, band, athletic and activity trips.

All board meetings are open to the public. Any business to be presented to the board should be presented to the clerk at least three days before the regular meeting. The next regular board meeting is scheduled for May 5, 8 p. m. at the clerk's office in the Logan Elm High School.

Light Ring Rouses Ire Of Tenants

CHICAGO (AP) — The Metropolis of the Midwest has acquired a new night time scenic attraction that seems to reach to the stars, cut cries of protest are soaring.

The 100-story John Hancock Center, which towers over Chicago's Near North Side, was adorned Monday with a bright ring of lights around its 98th floor.

Hancock Center officials proudly dubbed their creation "the crown of lights."

But residents of nearby high-rise apartments, who grudgingly have come to tolerate the center's domination of their view, have given it less poetic titles.

One resident of a plush high-rise complex called the new lighting effect "a 100 story juke box." Another termed it "a neon domino."

"What ever it is," said another resident, "it wasn't in the lease when I signed up for $215 a month."

Sea urchins and starfish carry their young in brood pouches. These pouches are located on the back of the sea urchin and around the mouth of the starfish.

Sen. Percy Pressures 'Slumlord'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first tangible result from a Senate probe of hunger and poverty in the nation's capital has been the agreement of a slum landlord to start repairs on a tenement apartment. Sen. Charles Percy said was a "pigsty."

The Illinois Republican Wednesday told an applauding audience at a theater in one of Washington's black slum areas that he had telephoned the landlord and convinced him to start repairs after he and other members of the Senate hunger committee toured several tenements.

The committee's three days of hearings on poverty and malnutrition in the capital concluded today, with a session focusing on, among other things, Washington's high infant mortality rate.

A survey two years ago said only Mississippi had a higher infant death rate than the capital.

Tuesday, Percy visited the four-room apartment of Mrs. Dora Crowder in a run-down, trash-littered area and learned she pays more than half of her $270 monthly welfare check to rent the apartment for herself and six children.

"It was a pigsty. It was terrible," Percy said, noting there were rat holes in the walls, the only toilet had been stopped up for months and there was no hot water.

As a result of his phone call, he said, "This morning, for the first time, two plasterers and a general repairman showed up at 7:30."

"With the spotlight of attention on them," he said, "something is going to be done."

"We recognize this is the case, and we intend to do something about it."

But not everyone was convinced the start would be continued.

"We in Washington don't have senators who are going to come around to our homes every month," commented Mrs. Marty Green, one of three mothers on welfare who appeared before the committee.

Like Tuesday's field trip, the hearing Wednesday brought repeated testimony about rents and inadequate care of proper ty by landlords.

The committee received more testimony that the cost of food stamps is too high for many welfare recipients with large families and that cumbersome administrative requirements discourage many applicants.

Mamie To Get Mailing Privilege

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower will have lifetime free mailing privileges under a bill passed by the House.

The House adopted the measure by voice vote Wednesday and sent it to the Senate.

The custom of giving free mailing to widows of presidents and former presidents began with Martha Washington, the first president's widow.

Sen. Percy Pressures 'Slumlord'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first tangible result from a Senate probe of hunger and poverty in the nation's capital has been the agreement of a slum landlord to start repairs on a tenement apartment Sen. Charles Percy said was a "pigsty."

The Illinois Republican Wednesday told an applauding audience at a theater in one of Washington's black slum areas that he had telephoned the landlord and convinced him to start repairs after he and other members of the Senate hunger committee toured several tenements.

The committee's three days of hearings on poverty and malnutrition in the capital concluded today, with a session focusing on, among other things, Washington's high infant mortality rate.

A survey two years ago said only Mississippi had a higher infant death rate than the capital.

Tuesday, Percy visited the four-room apartment of Mrs. Dora Crowder in a run-down, trash-littered area and learned she pays more than half of her $370 monthly welfare check to rent the apartment for herself and six children.

"It was a pigsty. It was terrible," Percy said, noting there were rat holes in the walls, the only toilet had been stopped up for months and there was no hot water.

As a result of his phone call, he said, "This morning, for the first time, two plasterers and a general repairman showed up at 7:30."

"With the spotlight of attention on them," he said, "something is going to be done."

"We recognize this is the case, and we intend to do something about it."

But not everyone was convinced the start would be continued.

"We in Washington don't have senators who are going to come around to our homes every month," commented Mrs. Marty Green, one of three mothers on welfare who appeared before the committee.

Like Tuesday's field trip, the hearing Wednesday brought repeated testimony about rents and inadequate care of property by landlords. The committee received more testimony that the cost of food stamps is too high for many welfare recipients with large families and that cumbersome administrative requirements discourage many applicants.

Mamie To Get Mailing Privilege

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower will have lifetime free mailing privileges under a bill passed by the House.

The House adopted the measure by voice vote Wednesday and sent it to the Senate.

The custom of giving free mailing to widows of presidents and former presidents began with Martha Washington, the first president's widow.

Good Gardener, Accomplished Arranger Is Rare Combination Of Fine Talent

By RUTH MONTELIUS
Garden Editor

Mrs. Donald Watt, 340 North Court St., is that rare combination — a good gardener and an arranger of note.

It is very unusual to find this combination. Either one is a fine gardener or an arranger. It takes a fine talent to do both. Her latest achievements are proof of this double talent.

She has had two of her arrangements just published. One is included in the "Garden Path" magazine of the Ohio Association of Garden Clubs. This is a Best of Show arrangement called "Space Flight."

The other is an arrangement in the Ohio Association of Garden Clubs book of Flower Arrangements, Vol. 1 2nd ed.

The Circleville Herald.
10 Thur. April 17, 1969
Circleville, Ohio

Timely Tips

Lawn mowing begins when the grass is about two inches tall.

It is too early to sow marigolds, zinnias, portulaca or salvia outdoors; wait till the soil is warmer.

Pinch back the tips of snapdragon seedlings to make them branch.

When cutting daffodils for arrangements indoors, take only the flowers but allow the leaves to remain. This bulb foliage is the plant's food factory to replenish the bulb underground as it forms the new flowers for next spring. The bulb foliage should remain, uncut until it turns brown.

If you have not yet pruned your roses (hybrid teas) do so immediately. Cut them back to eight or ten inches. If you prefer show blooms prune more severely than if you want garden show of bloom. Since climbing roses bloom on the last year's branches, they should be cut back very severely, after they have bloomed.

Get that fertilizer on your roses to produce beautiful June bloom. Start your spray or dust schedule for roses as soon as leaves appear. Get ahead of the bugs and disease and it is much better.

Transplant vegetable seedlings from hotbed to coldframe.

Begin to get soil ready for May sowing and planting.

Prepare coldframe and sow seeds of the more tender annual flowers to grow plants for setting out in beds after frost danger. This includes marigolds, hybrid petunias, cosmos, scabiosa, calliposis, annual asters, and annual phlox. All winter covering should be removed by end of month.

Gladiolus corms may be planted for early flowering.

Evergreens such as aborvitae and yew which need pruning may be cut back just before growth starts. It is safer not to cut into wood more than one year old.

She has had 18 arrangements published. She has had 13 Best of Shows, 15 Sweepstakes and hundreds of prizes in various flower shows.

AS to the gardening side, a recent visit to the Watt garden really proves what an outstanding gardener she is. Mrs. Watt's latest interest is in new varieties of Daffodils. She has added 14 new kinds this year.

These are just starting to bloom and are quite lovely. Two that caught my eye were "Rasbee" and "Spellbinder." Some of the other new varieties that she has added are Park's newest named Elizabeth Bass, Moles Hobby, Estella Mol, Rathavon, Bryher, Oranger, Renee Donaldson, Curley Locks, Green Island, Rococo, Rasbee and Jackson Perkins' White Lion, Fleurimont, Ice Follies.

When asked if she had any Daffodils the reply was to give them an all purpose fertilizer and top dressing when planted in the fall and another top dressing when they are in bud in the spring. She also plants in three for a better showing.

For those who are wondering what the difference is between a jonquil, daffodil, and narcissus, the daffodils belong to the genus Narcissus. The jonquil is a narcissus with fragrant clustered white or yellow flowers. A daffodil is a narcissus with large flowers having a trumpetlike center. The daffodil has a color range limited largely to yellow, ARRANGEMENT—Mrs. Donald Watt has recently had this fine arrangement published in The Ohio Association of Garden Clubs Flower Arrangement Book Vol 1, Ed. 2. This shows scotch broom skillfully used to define the line in a circular concave niche. Elegance is accomplished by the use of gladiolus, eucalyptus and magnolia leaves.

NEW DAFFODIL VARIETIES — Mrs. Donald Watt displays some of the newer varieties of daffodils in her garden at 340 N. Court St.

AN ATTRACTIVE NOOK — This is one of the many lovely spots in the Donald Watt yard and garden. Some of Mrs. Watt's daffodils are planted here.

orange and white, but apricot tones and a few clear pinks have recently been created.

Daffodils have much to recommend them. While a given species may not succeed in all parts of the country, there are types that do well in warm climates and others where winters are severe. They are equally fine in borders, rock gardens, small gardens and are beautiful naturalized in woodlands and meadows. They are also of value as cut flowers and in arrangements.

Mrs. Watt is that gardener who is always trying something new. She is adding three different lilies, hardy callas, turk's lily, a new white crocus and oriental poppies. She is always curious how things are going to turn out. She also grows iris and day lilies from seeds. She has planted 12 lily bulbets. This really takes patience and planning because the results are not seen for two or three years.

THIS fine gardener is one who is really organized. She keeps a written record of her plantings and labels her plants in the garden. As for her versatility she has a woodrose vine grown from a seed, a couple of honzai, and numerous houseplants started from either seed or slips.

I asked Mrs. Watt how long she had been gardening. The reply, with a laugh, was about 40 years. Then going on, she remarked that even as a child she was interested since both her mother and grandmother were fine gardeners.

There was never a time when she could not remember having something growing. She gives credit to having been an art student for her ability as an arranger. It is important to understand the basis of design such as taught to an artist to be a fine arranger.

Mrs. Watt is an active member of the Circleville Garden Club and is interested in any project that beautifies the community. The latest being the planting of trees in Ted Lewis Park by the Circleville Garden Club.

One comes away from such a garden and gardener inspired by what can be accomplished by enthusiasm and talent.

Bishops Eye Annulment Policy Change

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Roman Catholicism's American bishops faced the chance Wednesday to end decades of red tape in marriage annulments by enacting, subject to Rome's approval, speedier methods for handling the petition of husband or wife.

The National Conference of Catholic Bishops (NCCB), holding its semi-annual meeting here, was given late Tuesday a series of proposals designed to streamline church law about dissolving marriages.

The 215 bishops attending the meeting were to vote today on major changes in a set of 300 marriage-ending rules found in the 1917 canon law code.

Diocesan marriage tribunals would be able to function in the United States with one judge instead of three, according to one change put forth by a NCCB committee on church law during a closed session on the first day of the meeting.

A tribunal decision would be accepted as final unless appealed, whereas any concluded case now must be referred to another diocese for a second complete hearing no matter how the first diocese ruled.

The Rev. Thomas Hughes, a past president of the Canon Law Society of America and now on the diocese chancery staff in Hartford, Conn., outlined before the bishops the proposed changes and their meaning.

He said later, according to research just completed by his organization of church law experts, most U.S. dioceses find the existing regulations so cumbersome that they accept only three or four new cases a year.

There are few people in Pickaway county who do not know the voice of the Spring Peepers and only a few know who the singers may be. When I tell anyone that they are frogs they seem to think that they must be very large. I presume they are judging the size of the frogs by their voices. When I tell them that the frogs are scarcely an inch in length they seem to think that I don't know very much about frogs. Whoever heard of a full grown frog being so tiny?

Over The Garden Gate

Ruth Montelius — Garden Editor — 474-3937

This has been a lovely spring. I don't remember when the forsythia or magnolia trees have been so beautiful. I have had so many people point out spots here and there that are outstanding that it is hard to single any one spot. The star magnolia tree in the backyard of Dr. Ray Carroll's office on S. Pickaway St. is always a magnificent sight. I understand Pauline Savye also has one of these in her yard.

Speaking of Daffodils, the way Bruce Stevenson Jr. on Route 2 (Route 56) has naturalized these under small trees in front of their house with an old rail fence in front is one of the most attractive spots I pass every day.

One of the places to see all kinds of flowering trees is in Forest cemetery. We can be proud of the trees and flowers that make this such a restful and pleasant haven in the city. Not only are the trees, flowers, and shrubbery nice but it abounds with bird life and is a favorite place for bird watchers.

One of the ladies in the community who takes an avid interest in gardening and can show up the younger women with her knowledge of flowers and her results is Mrs. Turney Pontius, Route 4. She always has an annual garden along with her spring bulbs and other perennials. She reports that her roses have wintered well. She says that as soon as her garden can be spaded she will be planting.

Mrs. Lawrence McKenzie, Route 4, president of Logan Elm Garden Club says they have planted some new things this year, among which are climbing roses for their fence. This should be a lovely sight. They also planted a bittersweet and other shrubbery. She says her 20 hybrid roses wintered well. They killed and used manure.

Logan Elm Garden Club will be the hostess club for the county regional meeting of the Ohio Association of Garden Clubs which will be held June 5 in Circleville. There will be a flower show and luncheon in conjunction with this meeting.

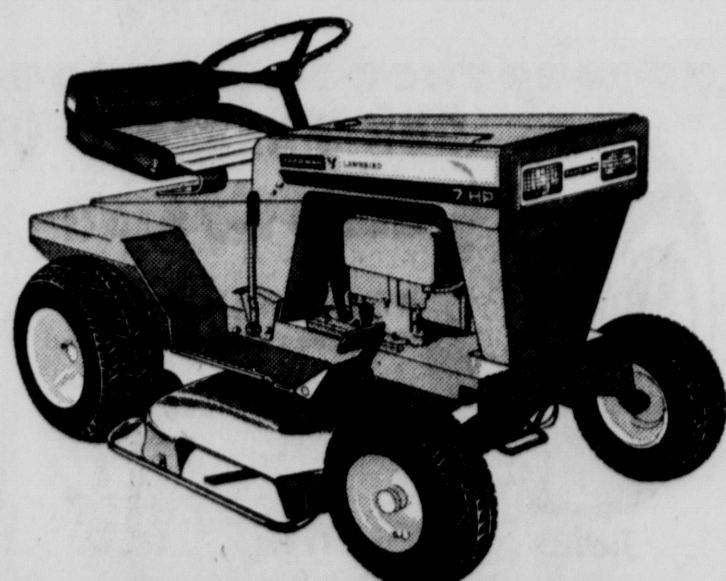

Mrs. Harry Kern, Route 2, is the only one to mention that their roses didn't make it through the winter. Out of 30 there were only two that survived. Her explanation is that they didn't do well last summer and not much is to be expected if this is so. The only bright spot is that she will have the fun of choosing new ones to replace the old. The only ones to survive were the Hybrid Teas — Frau Karl Druschki and Tropicana.

His will included a section praising Mrs. Norman for "her zealous attendance upon me over lunchtime for many years."

Rail Crew Law Upheld

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court Wednesday upheld the railroad "full crew" law.

The high court said there was no substantial constitutional question involved in an appeal by the Akron, Canton Youngstown Railroad Co.

The railroad contended that a law requiring Ohio railroads to maintain a fireman on an electrically propelled locomotive which has no fire to tend and no steam pressure to maintain violates the federal and state constitutions. It also argued that this amounts to taking property without due process of law.

The state's high court upheld a decision by Franklin County Common Pleas Judge Fred Shomaker and affirmed by the Court of Appeals. The latter court said it was a question for the Legislature, since the law required a fireman on a train.

In 1965 the Legislature rejected a bill to eliminate the fireman from diesel engine trains.

HUMANITARIAN — Bob Hope presents the Jean Hersholt Humanitarian Award to comedienne Martha Raye during the Academy Awards in Los Angeles. She was given the award for her devoted and often dangerous work entertaining troops in combat areas almost continuously since World War II.

The lute first appeared in approximately 3000 B.C. as the "kin" (to sing) of the Indo-Europeans of Central Asia. The kin had two strings and was used solely for song accompaniment.

Dear Abby: Wright Theory All Wrong

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: First, you made some reference to the "wives" of the famous Wright brothers, the inventors of the first airplane. Then a man who signed himself "JACK H." wrote in and said you "goofed" because the Wright brothers were both bachelors.

Then some lady from Olympia, Wash., wrote and said you did NOT goof — Jack H. goofed because her grandmother's sister was married to Wilbur Wright.

To set the record straight: My father was Reuchlin Wright. He was the older Wright brother. Wilbur died in 1912 and Orville died in 1948.

Orville Wright ("Uncle Orv." we called him) named my husband as one of the executors of his estate. I am sure there have been several Wilbur Wrights, and I do not doubt sister WAS married to a Wilbur Wright, but he wasn't the co-inventor of the airplane.

Sincerely yours,
ELLWYN WRIGHT STEEGER

DEAR ABBY: I DID NOT GOOF! I checked and checked and checked and nowhere can I find evidence that Wilbur Wright was ever married.

I even checked over 100 pictures in various books and newspapers. I carefully looked for young women. In each case, the only woman with Wilbur was his sister Katherine, who kept house for him after his mother died. The only other woman in a picture with the Wright brothers (either or both) was the star, Mary Pickford.

JACK H.
DEAR ABBY: You have uncorked a question which now must be correctly answered, because it is of real importance to aviation history. Was Wilbur Wright, at some time of his life, married? If so, it was, a deep dark secret.

The urgency to me is that I have a new book soon going into publication which is concerned with a phase of aviation history in which I state anew that neither Orville nor Wilbur ever married. If there is any evidence to the contrary, I wish to make a correction in time.

You may not be aware that it is aviation gospel that Wilbur and Orville had an agreement (at least tacit) that neither would marry, so they could retain a close-knit brother team in their experimenting.

If Wilbur ever had a secret marriage, I assure you it would be a positive sensation to the aviation world, and you will be doing a great service to clear this up.

Very truly yours,
C.R.R.: ALBANY, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: Two wrongs in your column do not make a WRIGHT.

Jack H. did NOT goof, as charged by a reader in Olympia, Wash.

Wilbur Wright, inventor and aviator died May 30, 1912, a bachelor in Dayton, O. I attended his funeral.

SURE OF MY FACTS
DEAR ABBY: If you want to have a little fun, just mention the name of a famous person, and then watch the "relatives" crawl out of the woodwork.

Of course everyone has shirt-tail relations, but the more famous a person is, the more relatives he seems to have.

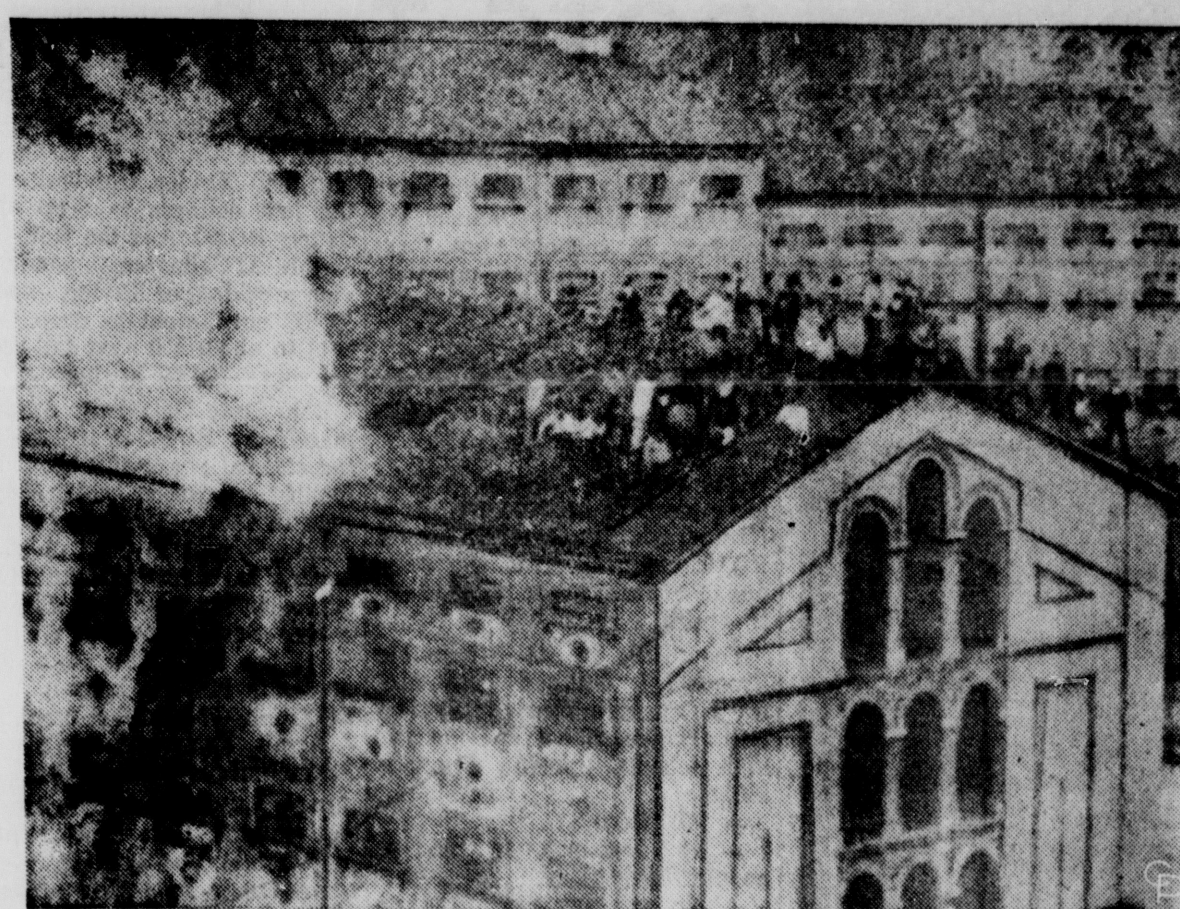

About the Wright brothers: There is no record of either Orville or Wilbur's ever having been married, so it follows that neither has any sons, grandsons or great-grandsons. But just pick up a Dayton, O., telephone directory and look at the Orville and W. Wrights listed there!

Of course, there are plenty of legitimate WRIGHTS all over the United States, and who is to stop them from naming a son Orville or Wilbur if they so choose? I am sure many do so with no intent to bask in the glory of the famous inventors and should not be criticized. Sign this...

The usual dreary summer schedule, filled with off-told tales, is justified on economic bases by the networks since production costs increase yearly. Besides, nighttime TV audiences drop as the days grow longer. The numbers reach rock bottom in July and August when many people are on vacations. The soap operas and some game shows continue with new shows year round. Most soaps try to work into a solid, special type of plot to tide them over the hot weather months. One daytime serial now is heading toward a murder trial sequence that will jog along all summer and can be handled so that regular performers can be cut out of the show here and there to take a vacation or play a little summer stock.

ROTC To Become Voluntary In All Ohio Colleges This Fall

By STEVE DRAKE
Associated Press Writer

Militant college students have announced plans to "smash the military in schools" but most Ohio college officials say they will not yield to student pressure.

The major focal point of student protests this spring is the 52-year-old Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC).

The militant students -- most are members of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) -- want ROTC removed from the campus or at least given no academic credit.

The SDS, in its "Columbia Proposal," outlined strategies for a "spring offensive" against military presence in colleges and high schools. Specific demands include:

- No ROTC.
- No research in war or counter-insurgency.
- No military recruiting on campuses.

The first protests against ROTC erupted last week at Kent State and later more violently at Harvard.

The Kent State encounter was relatively mild. Six students were arrested. Seven other students and the Kent State SDS chapter were suspended for their part in the demonstrations.

There are 18,401 students enrolled in ROTC courses in Ohio. Two colleges offer Navy ROTC with 600 students enrolled. Twelve colleges instruct 13,659 students in military science or Army ROTC. And 13 colleges offer aerospace studies or Air Force ROTC to about 4,142 students.

The Air Force announced last Friday it was disbanding ROTC units at eight colleges around the nation including Kenyon and Capital in Ohio. The Air Force cited failure to meet officer quotas -- not student unrest -- in phasing out ROTC units. Twenty colleges -- including Oberlin of Ohio -- were dropped in a similar Air Force move in 1957.

Beginning this fall, ROTC at circles, Jackson also belongs to St. Johns Episcopal Church, Worthington.

He is married to the former Martha Pedersen, of Bayville, N. Y. the couple live at 5696 Foster Ave., Worthington with their three children, Susan, Richard and Mark.

all Ohio colleges will be voluntary. The University of Cincinnati and Xavier University are the last colleges to drop mandatory ROTC. And the Rev. Jeremiah O'Callaghan, academic vice president of Xavier, expects ROTC enrollment to drop from 1048 to about 400 next fall when voluntary ROTC begins.

Ohio State University dropped mandatory ROTC in 1961 following several years of student and faculty opposition which began first in 1887 -- four years after drilling began at OSU. A sharp decline in ROTC enrollment occurred in 1962 and 1963. But voluntary enrollment has increased to the point that Ohio State presently has the largest Army ROTC and the largest combined -- Army, Navy and Air Force -- ROTC units in the nation.

Under provisions of the Morrill Act of 1862, Ohio State, Ohio's only land-grant college, is required to include instruction in military tactics, agriculture and mechanical arts. But the act made no provisions for schools which later did not teach those subjects.

The ROTC program is divided into basic and advanced groups. The basic program is for freshmen and sophomore college students. It was this part of ROTC formally required at most Ohio colleges. The advanced program is also two years -- generally for junior and senior students. Upon successful completion of four years study and graduation from the University, the ROTC student is commissioned as a second lieutenant.

Basic objective and course outlines of Army ROTC are controlled by the ROTC Directorate of the Continental Army headquartered at Ft. Monroe, Va. Aerospace studies ROTC is regulated by headquarters, Air Force ROTC at Maxwell AFB.

Regulation at the national level makes ROTC courses similar for all colleges.

In general the ROTC Cadet spends one hour a week in leadership laboratory -- close-order drill -- and one to three hours a week in the classroom.

Basic military science courses include instruction in military history, marksmanship, map reading and small group tactics.

Basic Air Force ROTC class of the Ohio State University according to Capt. Guy Brown Aerospace Studies Department, include instruction in the nature and principles of war, national power and the general purposes of aerospace power.

Advanced cadets learn advanced leadership skills. The Air Force uses seminars for an intense study of leadership, management and aerospace power.

Nationally ROTC counts about 10.5 per cent of the student's graduation requirements.

A four-year Air Force ROTC cadet at Ohio State earns 15 academic credits towards graduation. But in earning a Bachelor of Arts degree, that same student is required to take only 14 hours of English, 10 hours of mathematics and 15 hours of physical or biological sciences.

This ratio of ROTC credits to basic English -- mathematics -- science credits is nearly the same for all Ohio colleges and is a major source of student and faculty criticism of ROTC.

"A ROTC student here ends up with a major in aerospace studies," says Dr. Richard Summerfield, dean of Arts and Sciences at Capital. "Unless he is going into a professional military career, that is pretty hard to build on in terms of graduate school or a business careers."

Kent State announced two months ago that it was beginning a review of ROTC. The reviews are conducted by curriculum committees for the University's four colleges. Two of the committees have already recommended that ROTC be retained with academic credit.

"A decision on ROTC will be made only after considerable debate," says Dr. Louis Harris, vice president and provost of KSU. "We will not get rid of ROTC unless the various faculties recommended it on academic grounds. We will not make a decision based on student pressure."

The Kent State SDS, in a statement prepared for The Associated Press, cited three reasons for opposing ROTC on campus:

"It provides leadership for an army engaged in imperialist aggression against popular movements at home and abroad." (The Defense Department says ROTC produces 33 per cent of all Army officers, 32 per cent of Air Force officers and 12 per cent of Navy and Marine officers.)

"It is class privileged and available only to those segments of the middle and working classes who can afford to go to college."

"Even in that class-privileged context, ROTC kids themselves are oppressed. ROTC can be seen as an alternative to an even worse reality -- the draft."

Ohio University is also reviewing the merits of military training. Although given academic credit, ROTC in most Ohio University colleges is not counted toward graduation according to Dr. Edward Penson, assistant provost of OU.

Some students are raising questions about the merits of

ROTC at the Athens campus. But Dr. Penson says there is a growing fear among students and faculty that to disband ROTC nationally would make the military "retire behind the protective walls of the military academies and train as a military class."

Other critics, citing drill and classroom instruction, say ROTC does not match the academic standards of other university programs.

But Capt. Brown of the Ohio State Air Force ROTC unit disagrees:

"ROTC is unique training and should be looked at from that standpoint. It teaches the basic cadet how to follow directions. It gives training in leadership, communication and confidence."

Officials at Miami, Ohio State, Bowling Green State and Central State universities say they have had few, if any, student protests against ROTC. They said they do not presently plan any reviews or changes in ROTC unless suggested by the military or their faculty.

"It's tough to reach a rational decision in the climate of protest," says Ohio University's Dr. Penson. "We will measure ROTC by the same standards applied to any other curriculum."

Worthington Man Named To Highway Staff

RICHARD D. JACKSON

A Worthington man was named Wednesday as division deputy director of Ohio Department of Highway offices in Delaware.

In naming Richard D. Jackson to the post, Director P. E. Masheter said the appointment is effective April 20. Jackson succeeds Frank M. Williams, 142 W. Schreyer Pl., Columbus, who resigned effective April 18.

Jackson, 35, will be in charge of construction and maintenance in the eight-county area of Franklin, Delaware, Morrow, Marion, Pickaway, Union, Madison and Fayette.

A nine-year veteran with the department, Jackson started as a design engineer in Delaware in 1960 following graduation from Tri-State College in Angola, Ind. He is a native of Oyster Bay, N. Y.

Jackson was named operations engineer of division offices in Delaware in 1967 following several years as project engineer, assistant structural engineer, division design engineer, and as an engineer in the Division of Construction.

ROTC To Become Voluntary In All Ohio Colleges This Fall

By STEVE DRAKE
Associated Press Writer

Militant college students have announced plans to "smash the military in schools" but most Ohio college officials say they will not yield to student pressure.

The major focal point of student protests this spring is the 52-year-old Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC).

The militant students -- most are members of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) -- want ROTC removed from the campus or at least given no academic credit.

The SDS, in its "Columbia Proposal," outlined strategies for a "spring offensive" against military presence in colleges and high schools. Specific demands include:

- No ROTC.
- No research in war or counter-insurgency.
- No military recruiting on campuses.

The first protests against ROTC erupted last week at Kent State and later more violently at Harvard.

The Kent State encounter was relatively mild. Six students were arrested. Seven other students and the Kent State SDS chapter were suspended for their part in the demonstrations.

There are 18,401 students enrolled in ROTC courses in Ohio. Two colleges offer Navy ROTC with 600 students enrolled. Twelve colleges instruct 13,659 students in military science or Army ROTC. And 13 colleges offer aerospace studies or Air Force ROTC to about 4,142 students.

The Air Force announced last Friday it was disbanding ROTC units at eight colleges around the nation including Kenyon and Capital in Ohio. The Air Force cited failure to meet officer quotas -- not student unrest -- in phasing out ROTC units. Twenty colleges -- including Oberlin of Ohio -- were dropped in a similar Air Force move in 1957.

Beginning this fall, ROTC at Circles, Jackson also belongs to St. Johns Episcopal Church, Worthington.

He is married to the former Martha Pedersen, of Bayville, N. Y. The couple live at 5696 Foster Ave., Worthington with their three children, Susan, Richard and Mark.

all Ohio colleges will be voluntary. The University of Cincinnati and Xavier University are the last colleges to drop mandatory ROTC. And the Rev. Jeremiah O'Callaghan, academic vice president of Xavier, expects ROTC enrollment to drop from 1048 to about 400 next fall when voluntary ROTC begins.

Ohio State University dropped mandatory ROTC in 1961 following several years of student and faculty opposition which began first in 1887 -- four years after drilling began at OSU. A sharp decline in ROTC enrollment occurred in 1962 and 1963. But voluntary enrollment has increased to the point that Ohio State presently has the largest Army ROTC and the largest combined -- Army, Navy and Air Force -- ROTC units in the nation.

Under provisions of the Morrill Act of 1862, Ohio State, Ohio's only land-grant college, is required to include instruction in military tactics, agriculture and mechanical arts. But the act made no provisions for schools which later did not teach those subjects.

The ROTC program is divided into basic and advanced groups. The basic program is for freshmen and sophomore college students. It was this part of ROTC formally required at most Ohio colleges. The advanced program is also two years -- generally for junior and senior students. Upon successful completion of four years study and graduation from the University, the ROTC student is commissioned as a second lieutenant.

Basic objective and course outlines of Army ROTC are controlled by the ROTC Directorate of the Continental Army headquartered at Ft. Monroe, Va. Aerospace studies ROTC is regulated by headquarters, Air Force ROTC at Maxwell AFB.

Regulation at the national level makes ROTC courses similar for all colleges.

In general the ROTC Cadet spends one hour a week in leadership laboratory -- close-order drill -- and one to three hours a week in the classroom.

Basic military science courses include instruction in military history, marksmanship, map reading and small group tactics.

Basic Air Force ROTC class of the Ohio State University according to Capt. Guy Brown, Aerospace Studies Department, include instruction in the nature and principles of war, national power and the general purposes of aerospace power.

Advanced cadets learn advanced leadership skills. The Air Force uses seminars for an intense study of leadership, management and aerospace power.

Nationally ROTC counts about 10.5 per cent of the student's graduation requirements.

A four-year Air Force ROTC cadet at Ohio State earns 15 academic credits towards graduation. But in earning a Bachelor of Arts degree, that same student is required to take only 14 hours of English, 10 hours of mathematics and 15 hours of physical or biological sciences.

This ratio of ROTC credits to basic English -- mathematics -- science credits is nearly the same for all Ohio colleges and is a major source of student and faculty criticism of ROTC.

"A ROTC student here ends up with a major in aerospace studies," says Dr. Richard Sumner, dean of Arts and Sciences at Capital. "Unless he is going into a professional military career, that is pretty hard to build on in terms of graduate school or a business career."

Kent State announced two months ago that it was beginning a review of ROTC. The reviews are conducted by curriculum committees for the University's four colleges. Two of the committees have already recommended that ROTC be retained with academic credit.

"A decision on ROTC will be made only after considerable debate," says Dr. Louis Harris, vice president and provost of KSU. "We will not get rid of ROTC unless the various faculties recommended it on academic grounds. We will not make a decision based on student pressure."

The Kent State SDS, in a statement prepared for The Associated Press, cited three reasons for opposing ROTC on campus:

"It provides leadership for an army engaged in imperialist aggression against popular movements at home and abroad." (The Defense Department says ROTC produces 33 per cent of all Army officers, 32 per cent of Air Force officers and 12 per cent of Navy and Marine officers.)

"It is class privileged and available only to those segments of the middle and working classes who can afford to go to college."

"Even in that class-privileged context, ROTC kids themselves are oppressed. ROTC can be seen as an alternative to an even worse reality -- the draft."

Ohio University is also reviewing the merits of military training. Although given academic credit, ROTC in most Ohio University colleges is not counted toward graduation according to Dr. Edward Penson, assistant provost of OU.

Some students are raising questions about the merits of

ROTC at the Athens campus. But Dr. Penson says there is a growing fear among students and faculty that to disband ROTC nationally would make the military "retire behind the protective walls of the military academies and train as a military class."

Other critics, citing drill and classroom instruction, say ROTC does not match the academic standards of other university programs.

But Capt. Brown of the Ohio State Air Force ROTC unit disagrees:

"ROTC is unique training and should be looked at from that standpoint. It teaches the basic cadet how to follow directions. It gives training in leadership, communication and confidence."

Officials at Miami, Ohio State, Bowling Green State and Central State universities say they have had few, if any, student protests against ROTC. They said they do not presently plan any reviews or changes in ROTC unless suggested by the military or their faculty.

"It's tough to reach a rational decision in the climate of protest," says Ohio University's Dr. Penson. "We will measure ROTC by the same standards applied to any other curriculum."

Disaster Hospitals Face Disaster Under Budget Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has moved to cut off funds for rehabilitating the emergency hospitals stored for use in event of a nuclear disaster. But officials raise the possibility that the budget savings will be offset by increased drug spoilage.

The development comes as the Nixon administration pushes for an antiballistic missile system and reviews civil defense "to minimize American casualties" in any nuclear attack.

In his fiscal 1970 budget revisions announced Tuesday, the President slashed the planned spending for emergency health services from the $7.5 million recommended by President Johnson to $2.76 million.

The cut would mean the Public Health Service must suspend its one-third completed program of sorting through $250 million worth of prepackaged equipment and drugs that have sat idle for years.

As much as $5 million worth of supplies a year have already gone to waste, say officials, through spoilage, rotting or other deterioration resulting from neglect since they were purchased beginning in 1953.

Dr. Henry C. Hunley, director of the division of health mobilization, said the budget cut would also rule out any updating of the $100 million national medical stockpile.

Some 1,785 packaged disaster hospitals were acquired by the government's old civil defense organization between 1953 and 1957, and were stored in central depots.

In 1959, they were farmed out to communities for storage. When President Kennedy revamped civil defense organization early in his term, the hospitals were turned over to the Public Health Service.

It began sorting through some of the medical supplies and also purchased 750 more of the units. Continuing losses averaging up to $5 million a year resulted from the useful life of drugs expiring before they were rotated off storage shelves and used.

In 1965, $21 million worth of outdated drugs were destroyed, causing such a furor that a special study was undertaken to decide what to do with the hospitals.

Police said Jones' wife, Nanette, 30, told them shortly after her husband was taken to the hospital Dec. 22 he was struck on the head by a man as he walked near his residence.

Pro-Soviet Czechs Gain Strength

PRAGUE (AP) — Leading pro-Moscow Communists made a comeback in Czechoslovakia today as their party's Central Committee gathered for a crisis session.

Ten prominent party members accused of collaboration during the Soviet invasion last August were cleared of any wrongdoing and staunchly defended in a statement issued Wednesday night by the party Executive Committee. The Executive Committee is an eight-member inner circle of the 21-member Presidium, ruling body of the Central Committee.

The announcement obviously was timed to precede today's session of the 121-member Central Committee.

The agenda for the committee meeting was expected to include discussion of the internal struggle between old guard and the reformers who took over in January 1968, plans to cancel the traditional mass gatherings on May Day to prevent new anti-Soviet outbursts, price increases and plans for the world meeting of Communist parties in Moscow in June.

Czechoslovaks wondered if the Executive Committee statement meant the old guard had wrested control from party chief Alexander Dubcek's reformers or whether it was a concession that would save the jobs of the still-popular "Big Four" of the reform movement—Dubcek, Premier Oldrich Cernik, President Ludvik Svoboda and Parliament Vice Secretary Josef Smrkovsky.

The statement from the Executive Committee gave a clean bill of health to 10 named leaders and "many comrades in the lower ranks (who) were unjustly labeled and in some cases even exposed to terror."

Although the role played by the 10 is not fully clear, some were denounced as collaborators in underground broadcasts, newspapers, placards and leaflets that said Czechoslovaks united during the first days of the Soviet occupation.

One of the 10, Party Secretary Alois Indra, was reported in August to be Moscow's choice for puppet premier. He remained in Moscow for more than a month after the invasion, then returned to Prague and became increasingly active.

Meanwhile, the Soviet news agency Tass announced early today that the Warsaw Pact nations had ended three days of air defense maneuvers in Eastern Europe.

The announcement of the maneuvers last weekend caused a stir in Czechoslovakia, and they were viewed by many as an attempt to put pressure on the Central Committee in advance of the meeting today.

Open House Set In Ohio Parks, Wildlife Areas

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's parks, forests and wildlife areas will hold open house Sunday, April 27, Fred E. Morr, director of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources announced Wednesday.

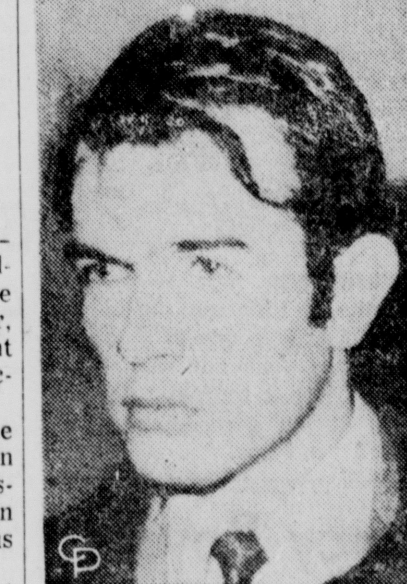

Uniformed personnel from the division of parks and recreation will be on hand to answer questions and distribute information brochures about the various areas.

This year, Morr, said boat owners will get a special bonus. All of the locks will be open from Dresden, Muskingum County, to Marietta, Washington County, a 93-mile stretch giving access to the Ohio River, the Mississippi and eventually the Gulf of Mexico.

South African Army Shortens Haircuts

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — The army is cracking down hard on long-haired parttime soldiers. Several whose locks did not pass inspection at a Western Province Command parade were ordered to the army barber for regulation haircuts and will be prosecuted in court.

They are national servicemen (draftees) who have completed their basic period of training and have returned to civilian life, although they must attend monthly parades.

THE BOMB-BY-MAIL murder trial of Orville E. Stifel II (above) is underway in Cleveland, the first capital offense case in federal court there in four decades. Stifel, 22, Cincinnati, Ohio, is accused of mailing a bomb to Cleveland schoolteacher Daniel J. Ronec, 23, which killed him in his home in nearby Lorain. Ronec was dating Cheryl Mae Jones of Youngstown, who formerly dated Stifel.

Claim Tax Crisis Fault Of Board

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Rep. James Thorpe says a crisis in Ohio's property tax machinery might have been avoided if the State Board of Tax appeals had acted more quickly to comply with a 1965 legislative mandate.

The Alliance Republican raised the issue during a House Ways and Means Committee hearing on a bill to delay until 1972 state compliance with an Ohio Supreme Court order to establish uniform property tax rates between counties and different types of property.

Thorpe noted that in 1965 the legislature ordered the state board to establish a uniform statewide percentage of property market value which would be used as the property's listed value for tax purposes.

"Four years have gone by, and now they want another three years . . ." Thorpe said.

Sen. Michael Maloney, R - 7 Cincinnati, sponsor of the bill under consideration, said it is necessary to prevent a sudden chaotic change in property tax rates.

Sudden compliance with the court ruling, he said, would result in an overall increase in property taxes totaling $1.6 billion to $1.7 billion, with some landowners facing tax increases in excess of 60 per cent.

A second hearing on the bill is scheduled next week.

Thorpe noted that in 1965 the legislature ordered the state board to establish a uniform statewide percentage of property market value which would be used as the property's listed value for tax purposes.

"Four years have gone by, and now they want another three years..." Thorpe said.

Sen. Michael Maloney, R - 7 Cincinnati, sponsor of the bill under consideration, said it is necessary to prevent a sudden chaotic change in property tax rates.

Sudden compliance with the court ruling, he said, would result in an overnight increase in property taxes totaling $1.6 billion to $1.7 billion, with some landowners facing tax increases in excess of 60 per cent.

A second hearing on the bill is scheduled next week.

Pro-Soviet Czechs Gain Strength

PRAGUE (AP) — Leading pro-Moscow Communists made a comeback in Czechoslovakia today as their party's Central Committee gathered for a crisis session.

Ten prominent party members accused of collaboration during the Soviet invasion last August were cleared of any wrongdoing and staunchly defended in a statement issued Wednesday night by the party Executive Committee. The Executive Committee is an eight-member inner circle of the 21-member Presidium, ruling body of the Central Committee.

The announcement obviously was timed to precede today's session of the 121-member Central Committee.

The agenda for the committee meeting was expected to include discussion of the internal struggle between old guard and the reformers who took over in January 1968, plans to cancel the traditional mass gatherings on May Day to prevent new anti-Soviet outbursts, price increases and plans for the world meeting of Communist parties in Moscow in June.

Czechoslovaks wondered if the Executive Committee statement meant the old guard had wrested control from party chief Alexander Dubcek's reformers or whether it was a concession that would save the jobs of the still-popular "Big Four" of the reform movement — Dubcek, Premier Oldrich Cernik, President Ludvik Svoboda and Parliament Vice Secretary Josef Smrkovsky.

The statement from the Executive Committee gave a clean bill of health to 10 named leaders and "many comrades in the lower ranks (who) were unjustly labeled and in some cases even exposed to terror."

Although the role played by the 10 is not fully clear, some were denounced as collaborators in underground broadcasts, newspapers, placards and leaflets that x-ray Czechoslovaks united during the first days of the Soviet occupation.

One of the 10, Party Secretary Alois Indra, was reported in August to be Moscow's choice for puppet premier. He remained in Moscow for more than a month after the invasion, then returned to Prague and became increasingly active.

Meanwhile, the Soviet news agency Tass announced early today that the Warsaw Pact nations had ended three days of air defense maneuvers in Eastern Europe.

The announcement of the maneuvers last weekend caused a stir in Czechoslovakia, and they were viewed by many as an attempt to put pressure on the Central Committee in advance of the meeting today.

Ronec was dating Cheryl Mae Jones of Youngstown, who formerly dated Stifel.

Dresbach Hurls 4-Hit Shutout For Tiger '9'

The Circleville High School baseball team shutout Hillsboro, 7-0, behind the four-hit pitching of Randy Dresbach Wednesday.

Originally scheduled at Hillsboro, the game was moved to Circleville because of wet grounds on the Indians' home field.

The game was a pitcher's duel through the first three innings. The Tiger bats came alive in the bottom of the fourth.

With two out, Billy Thomas and Ed Wells walked. Ty Ankrum's single scored Thomas. After a wild pitch advanced the runners to second and third, Rick Sims lined a single that drove in Wells and Ankrum.

Sims stole second and scored on a single by Randy Halley and Circleville led, 4-0, after four innings.

In the fifth, the Tigers added three insurance runs on hits by Tom Bowers, Billy Thomas and Ed Wells, and a Hillsboro error.

Dresbach pitched a fine game, allowing only four hits, walking four and fanning five. Rollins was the Hillsboro starter. He was relieved by Tener after the Tigers had scored their seven runs.

Jenkins And Cubs Shut Out Cardinals, 1-0

By MIKE BRYSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
Ferguson Jenkins and Red Schoendienst took turns shaking up the St. Louis Cardinals, Mike Shannon shook up Glenn Beckert, and the Chicago Cubs are shaking up the National TRYING FOR NO. 1—Carol Mann, the high-ranking lady golf pro, is second in money won this year but she still hasn't won a tourney. She's seen during a recent event.

League's Eastern Division with their best start in 34 years. Jenkins, only Cub pitcher tagged with a loss in nine games so far this young season, cooked the Cardinals with five hits in a 1-0 blanking Wednesday night.

After the NL's defending champs' fifth loss in nine games, Manager Schoendienst announced he was benching three of last year's stars—Lou Brock, Tim McCarver and Julian Javier — for tonight's game with the Cubs.

Beckert, the Cubs' second baseman, was carried from the field in the seventh after Shannon, an ex-college football quarterback slammed into him while sliding into second.

Beckert apparently was not seriously injured, but was taken to a hospital for X rays and further examination. Shannon didn't require hospitalization, although he said, "I've got a big lump on my head."

Ron Santo, Cub third baseman and Beckert's roommate, said he was at first frightened by the collision. "All I saw was my roomies head go back—bang! I thought 'Oh, my God.' I went over to him and asked 'Roomie are you all right.' He said, 'I can't see out of one eye.' I thought he was paralyzed. He wasn't moving... just lying there and looking straight."

The Cubs picked up their lone run in the third off lefty Steve Carlton when Billy Williams singled, and moved around on a walk, Ernie Banks' sacrifice and an infield hit by Randy Hundley.

Schoendienst ordered a day's rest for Brock, McCarver and Javier because they "aren't hitting. Maybe a day off will give them a little help."

Brock had only four hits in 40 trips this season, Javier is 6-for-29 and McCarver 7-for-37.

Meanwhile, in other games Los Angeles back Bill Singer's four-hit pitching with four homers in a 9-1 conquest of San Diego, Jose Pagan rapped four hits and drove in three runs as Pittsburgh routed the New York Mets 11-3 and Hank Aaron's 512th homer of his career guided Atlanta past Houston 6-4. Montreal's game at Philadelphia was rained out.

Los Angeles had round trips from Wes Parker, Andy Kosco, Willie Crawford and Tom Haller in handing expansionist San Diego its fifth straight loss.

Pagan, replacing rookie Rich Hebner at third, tripled in two runs in the Pirates' four-run first inning and singled in another in a two-run ninth.

The Pirates chased starter

Jerry Koosman in the third after Pagan doubled and scored on Jerry May's sacrifice. The Pirates got four more runs off replacement Nolan Ryan in the fifth.

Aaron's two-run shot off lefty

Denny Lemaster in the first inning vaulted the great Atlanta slugger into a sixth place tie with former teammate Eddie Mathews on the all-time homer list. Aaron had been tied with Mel Ott.

Billy Conigliaro Blasts Out Homers, But Red Sox Lose

BOSTON (AP) — Five years ago in his first time at bat in Fenway Park, Tony Conigliaro hit a home run. That's a tough act to follow, but his kid brother Billy managed to do even better.

"Sure I was thinking about it," Billy said of that May afternoon in 1964 when Tony, then a 19-year-old rookie, made such a spectacular debut. "So what did I do my first time up? I struck out."

The 21-year-old Billy C. quickly made amends, however, smashing a pair of consecutive home runs Wednesday in his first major league start, although they weren't enough to stop the Baltimore Orioles from defeating his Boston Red Sox 11-8.

"I knew they were gone as soon as I hit them, but I don't really know what I thought about," Billy said. "I didn't really think anything. I was sort of stunned."

Tony, of course, went on from his debut to hit 104 home runs in four seasons before the eye injury which almost ended his career in August of 1967, and is now on the comeback trail from that injury.

"They didn't surprise me," he said of his kid brother's homers. "Not with the swing he's got."

"We worked out a lot during the winter, and we worked on his swing. Both of us were in real good shape when he got to spring training, and Billy's worked hard all spring."

Cincy Royals In Shuffle Of Hierarchy

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Royals have begun a hierarchy shuffle, with promises of more to come.

Wednesday, General Manager Pepper Wilson became the vice president of the National Basketball Association club, a newly created position.

His successor is Joseph A. Axelson, former assistant executive secretary of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

"This is the first in a series of basic organizational changes," said owner Max Jacobs in making the announcements at a press conference.

"We're changing everything on this club. We're opening a new era for the Royals. Our new general manager has a long and efficient history to merit his selection."

But Jacobs declined to disclose any of the anticipated changes which might be upcoming in the near future.

Viking Baseball Team Loses, 3-0

Teays Valley was blanked by host Franklin Heights, 3-0, Wednesday in a Metropolitan League baseball game.

The Vikings are 0-2 in the league and 0-5 overall. Franklin Heights has a 2-1 league mark.

Billy Conigliaro Blasts Out Homers, But Red Sox Lose

BOSTON (AP) — Five years ago in his first time at bat in Fenway Park, Tony Conigliaro hit a home run. That's a tough act to follow, but his kid brother Billy managed to do even better.

"Sure I was thinking about it," Billy said of that May afternoon in 1964 when Tony, then a 19-year-old rookie, made such a spectacular debut. "So what did I do my first time up? I struck out."

The 21-year-old Billy C. quickly made amends, however, smashing a pair of consecutive home runs Wednesday in his first major league start, although they weren't enough to stop the Baltimore Orioles from defeating his Boston Red Sox 11-8.

"I knew they were gone as soon as I hit them, but I don't really know what I thought about," Billy said. "I didn't really think anything. I was sort of stunned."

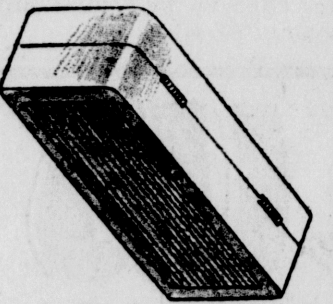

Tony, of course, went on from his debut to hit 104 home runs in four seasons before the eye injury which almost ended his career in August of 1967, and is now on the comeback trail from that injury.

"They didn't surprise me," he said of his kid brother's homers. "Not with the swing he's got."

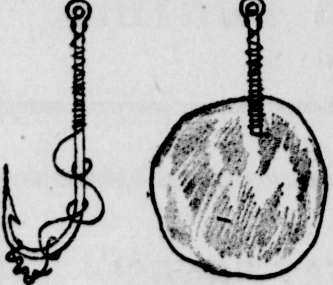

"We worked out a lot during the winter, and we worked on his swing. Both of us were in real good shape when he got to spring training, and Billy's worked hard all spring."

Pro Golfers Eye Las Costa With Gloom

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP)—The course is as long as they'll see, but it will take the straight hitter, not the belter, to survive on the awesome acres of La Costa Country Club course.

That was the consensus of an elite field of 28 of the world's best golfers today as they set out on what some called a safari, the first round of the $150,000 Tournament of Champions.

"This course is just too tough," said Billy Casper, the mild-mannered Mormon who rarely complains. "It's just not fair. That's how tough it is."

"You hit a ball in the rough and you just can't find it."

"It's like a U.S. Open course," Masters champion George Archer said. "It's going to go to the straight hitters. Guys like (Lee) Trevino and (Julius) Boros, guys who can keep it in play, keep it on the fairways."

"It's a jungle out there," Boros, the PGA champion, said. "Hit it into the rough and there is just no telling what may come charging out at you. You don't need caddies. You need gunbearers."

The object of their ire was the 7,200 yard, par 72 La Costa layout, laced with streams and dotted with pools and featuring a three-tiered, man-made waterfall.

But it wasn't the water, which could be a factor on nine holes, that had the pros talking to themselves — and anyone else who cared to listen to their woe. It's the rough.

"We cut it an inch today, an assistant club pro said. "And it grew an inch and a half."

"I can not shoot better than 290 on this course," said Argentina's Roberto de Vincenzo.

Homers Mark American League

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Easter Bunny has come and gone but the rabbit remains in American League baseballs.

The little fellow was really jumping Wednesday with 16 home runs sailing out of AL ball yards including seven in Boston's cozy Fenway Park.

The Red Sox got two apiece from Billy Conigliaro and George Scott but it wasn't enough to hold off the rampaging Baltimore Orioles, who beat Boston 11-8 in a game called by rain 7½ innings. That gave the Orioles 21 runs in the last two days in Friendly Fenway. Don Buford, Brooks Robinson and Paul Blair all reached the seats for Baltimore.

Hawks Face LA Lakers

ATLANTA (AP) — "It wouldn't make a bit of difference to me if we were to play the Boston Celtics or New York Knicks," says Coach Richie Guerin of the Atlanta Hawks.

"But first, we have to get there," he said Wednesday following a practice session.

The Hawks, trailing the Los Angeles Lakers 2-1 in the Western Division playoffs of the National Basketball Association, seek to even the best-of-7 series tonight here where they have won 10 in a row.

After losing two consecutive two-point decisions to the Lakers in Los Angeles, Atlanta stymied the Lakers with a 99-86 victory here Tuesday.

"We've been up for every game—and we honestly felt we should have been 2-0 after leaving LA," Guerin said. "There's an awful lot of pressure in the playoffs, and particularly when you play away."

Elsewhere, Detroit rapped Cleveland 8-2, Chicago dropped Kansas City 5-2, Oakland jolted California 6-1 and Minnesota whipped Seattle 6-4. Washington's game at New York was postponed by rain.

Buford drove in four runs with his homer and two singles and Robinson's shot was good for three runs. Blair's came with the bases empty and Dave Johnson added four straight singles to the 16-hit Oriole attack.

Scott had two singles to go with his pair of homers. But it was Conigliaro, filling in for his brother, Tony, who captured the imagination of the crowd with his two shots into Fenway's inviting left field screen.

"I was sort of stunned," the 21-year-old rookie admitted. Billy managed only 20 homers in four minor league seasons and is not rated as much a power hitter as his brother, Tony.

The homers came in Conigliaro's first major league start and helped the Red Sox stay in the game with the hepped-up Orioles, who've won five of the last six and scored 44 runs in that stretch.

Rookie Carlos May enjoyed his second two-homer day of the season and Buddy Bradford also connected as the White Sox took their home opener from Kansas City. The two teams turned in six double plays in the first major league game played outdoors on artificial infield turf.

Joe Foy connected for the Royals.

Jim Northrup drove in four runs for Detroit—two of them with a homer—and Denny McLain scattered nine hits to beat Cleveland for the second time this season. Norm Cash also homered for the Tigers and Jose Cardenal hit one for the Indians.

Sal Bando hammered a grand slam homer and Chuck Dobson's four-hitter eased Oakland past California. Bando's shot followed two walks and an error and gave Dobson all the offense he needed.

Minnesota used a three-run ninth inning rally capped by Rich Reese's two-out, two-run double to trim Seattle. Jim Gosger ended an 0-for-17 slump with three hits for the Pilots including his first home run of the year which gave Seattle a 4-3 lead in the eighth and set the stage for the late Twins' rally.

Bob Cousy Sees His Return To Basketball Some Day

By HAL PARIS
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Bob Cousy, one of basketball's all-time greats, figures he'll be back in the game he loves some day.

"After 25 years, you just don't completely divorce yourself from the game of basketball," the former Boston Celtic star said.

He retired last month after a six-year stint as head coach at Boston College to become a public relations consultant.

"I've had feelers from several professional teams but I want to try something else for a year or so. Then I'll consider coaching again."

The 40-year-old Cousy was here Wednesday representing a travel agency, one of three firms that compensate the former court magician with an income reportedly in six figures.

Cousy still runs his basketball camp at Pittsfield, N.H., that each summer draws 130 kids between the ages of 7 and 14.

"I love to work with kids and I think that's what I enjoyed most about college coaching. But recruiting, scouting and picture sessions are not my cup of tea."

Cousy said he was delighted

SPORTS Highlights

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Los Angeles Kings, who have never beaten the Blues in St. Louis, will try to break the hex tonight in the second game of the National Hockey League West Division playoffs.

The Blues opened the best-of-7 series Tuesday night blanking the Kings 4-0.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Smooth Lad overtook Hugh Boy in the stretch to win the featured race at Beulah Park Wednesday.

Smooth Lad returned $6.40, $2.60 and $2.40 while Hugh Boy placed for $7.80 and $3.80. Ona Summit ran third and paid $3.40.

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Thomas Gilliland of Delaware has been named president of the Ohio State Bowling Association, effective Aug. 1.

The association also announced Wednesday that its 1971 tournament will be held in Lima. Next year's event is set for Zanesville.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Barry Gibbs of the Oklahoma City Blazers was named the top defenseman in the Central Hockey League Wednesday. He is a 20-year-old Canadian from Lloydminster, Alberta.

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — The son of football great Otto Graham has signed a letter-of-intent with Miami University.

Dave Graham, 18, 6-foot-2 and 190 pounds, will be used as a placekicker. He played quarterback for his high school at Potomac, Md.

to see Boston doing so well in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

"The Celtics have the best team in the NBA right now. They didn't do much in the last month and a half of the regular season. You might say they were saving themselves for the playoffs."

"But with Bill Russell and Sam Jones going so well, the club has the cohesion to go all the way."

The former All-American at Holy Cross, who became somewhat of a legend in 13 years at Boston, looks trim enough to step in right now and help his old teammates.

"I still find time to play a little, especially during our summer clinic for high school juniors and seniors. And I plan a trip to Europe this summer to help some countries with their national basketball teams."

Cousy sees one major change in pro ball since the time he played. "The defense hasn't kept pace and the game should do something to make it tougher to score. I think smaller hoops could be the answer, and that goes for college and high school ball, too."

Lodge Warns Reds To Cut Action

PARIS (AP) — The United States told North Vietnam and the Viet Cong today that stepped-up military action such as they launched late in February will only bring continued loss of life and destruction.

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge spoke at the 13th full-scale session of the Vietnam peace talks. He apparently intended his warning as a reply to indications that the other side believes the Nixon administration will be influenced by mounting U.S. casualties.

Lodge spoke after the representative of the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front cited antiwar demonstrations in the United States and asserted that both the public and the military forces wanted Washington to withdraw.

"Peace will not come to Vietnam," Lodge said, "as a result of military operations such as those you have been conducting since the end of February. Indeed, it must inevitably be hindered thereby."

The weekly casualty reports said 204 Americans, 244 South Vietnamese military personnel and 2,890 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were killed in action last week. Both the Americans and the South Vietnamese reported increases in the number of their wounded, however, with the U.S. total rising sharply from 1,285 the previous week to 2,681.

Most of the wounded apparently resulted from the nightly rocket and mortar attacks on U.S. military bases that have characterized the enemy offensive. Such attacks frequently cause large numbers of shrapnel wounds. But the drop in the number of dead reflected the slacking off of enemy ground attacks in recent weeks.

U.S. officials responsible for the defense of the Saigon area say intelligence reports vary as to how long the offensive is to continue. One date that has turned up in recently acquired evidence is May 30.

One of these officers commented: "We say it's an offensive because the enemy does. We obviously have no way of knowing when it will end, except by what the enemy tells us."

Da Nang, on the coast about 400 miles northeast of Saigon, was attacked just before and just after midnight. It was the first attack on the city in nearly a month although it has been a frequent target because of its many bases and installations.

Other enemy targets during the night included the provincial capital of Quang Ngai, 350 miles northeast of Saigon; a base camp of the 173rd Airborne Brigade at Bong Son, 300 miles northeast of the capital, and a position of the 199th Light Infantry Brigade about six miles northwest of Saigon.

Meanwhile, troops of the 25th Infantry Division found the bodies of 43 North Vietnamese soldiers Wednesday in a jungle area 75 miles northwest of Saigon in Tay Ninh Province. They apparently were killed by air strikes about 10 days earlier and no attempt had been made to bury them.

Another element of the 25th Division uncovered a two-ton arms cache about 37 miles northwest of Saigon, U.S. headquarters said.

Draft Laws Explained

EDITOR'S NOTE: In an effort to create a greater public understanding of the laws and regulations governing the induction of personnel into the Armed Forces, the Selective Service System has prepared a series of pertinent questions and corresponding responses concerning provisions of the draft law. Here is another in the series.

Q. I am a sophomore English major and in Class II-S. There is an opportunity for me to take my junior year abroad at the University of London. May I do so and not lose my II-S while there? What procedures do I follow?

A. You should supply your local board with a letter which sets out your plans and a statement from your school here that academic hours of study you earn at the University of London will be creditable toward the granting of your abroad, it will be necessary for baccalaureate degree. To retain your II-S deferment while abroad, it will be necessary for the university in London to certify to your local board that a full-time course of study at that institution. Be sure to confer with your local board on this before you leave the United States.

Q. They tell me I can't meet with the appeal board that will consider my case and that the board can't consider any material my local board has not seen. What can I do to emphasize my points to the people who will decide my appeal?

A. You may attach to your appeal a statement specifying the matters in which you believe the local board erred and may direct attention to any information in your file which you believe the local board has failed to consider or give sufficient weight.

Q. Because I am a medical doctor, a question has arisen as to my liability for induction. From 1957-1960, before I went to medical school, I served on active duty with the Army. Am I now liable for further special call as a doctor under Selective Service laws?

A. No. Selective Service Regulations provide that a registrant who has served honorably on active duty after September 16, 1940, for a period of not less than one year in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Air Force or Coast Guard will

Tax Experts Study Nixon Plan For Helping The Poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tax experts say President Nixon's goal of eliminating federal incomes taxes for all families living below the poverty line would cost between $2 billion and $3 billion a year if done properly.

A bargain basement job could be done for less than $1 billion annually, they said, but the results would not be good and it would disrupt the tax system.

Dr. Arthur F. Burns, the White House counselor and economic specialist in Nixon's inner circle, disclosed Wednesday that relieving the poor of income taxes is one of the administration's ultimate goals.

By one recent official estimate, 11 million families—including single persons living alone—have incomes below the poverty line which is figured as $3,300 a year. But though they are defined as poor by the government, 2.2 million in this group pay federal income taxes.

One informed source said Wednesday that if the only objective was to remove the tax burden from the poor, it could be done for as little as half a billion dollars yearly.

Estimates for a proper program ranged between $2 billion and $3 billion annually. The extra cost, it was explained, would go into designing the program so that when persons below the poverty line finally inch across it they would not be hit by a sudden heavy tax burden.

Burns' disclosure continued a series of tax policy announcements this month in which the administration has taken an increasingly strong position on closing loopholes, especially those favoring the rich, and extending tax relief to those less well off.

dormitory resident at Eastern Michigan.

"He had lifted up the screen and put his hand through," she said. "I slammed the window on his hand."

The Basom girl apparently was walking alone when she disappeared.

A 17-year-old friend, Earl K. Kidd, said Dawn visited with him and some other young people for about an hour Tuesday and that when the girl said she had to get to her home about a mile away before dark, he walked with her part of the way.

Kidd said he last saw her walking down the Penn Central Railroad tracks in a factory section of the city, toward her home.

"I should have walked her all the way home," he said.

A truck driver spotted her body at 6:30 a.m. the next day.

An orange mohair sweater which Dawn had been wearing was found a mile away in the yard of an abandoned farmhouse.

She apparently had not been raped, said Sheriff Douglas J. Harvey.

Last March 25, the nude body of 16-year-old Maralynn Skelton of Romulus was found in a secluded section of Ann Arbor near the University of Michigan campus. A garter belt was wrapped around her neck, she had been beaten severely about the face and she had been sexually violated.

Four days earlier, on March 21, the body of Jane Mixer, a 22-year-old Michigan law school student, was found in a cemetery near Denton, northeast of Ypsilanti. She had been shot several times in the head.

Her body, lying on a tombstone, was fully clothed and she had not been raped.

Last July, the body of Joan E. Schell, 20, an Eastern Michigan coed, was found a mile and a half southwest of the place where the Basom girl's body was discovered. Miss Schell had been stabbed to death and sexually molested.

The series of slayings began in August 1967 when the body of Mary Fleszar, a 19-year-old Eastern Michigan coed, was discovered about a mile from the location of the Basom girl's body. Miss Fleszar had been beaten, stabbed and sexually abused.
